REASONS WHY ITALY WILL REFRAIN FROM INVADING EGYPT

Approaching Crisis In North

PEIPING TENSION INTENSIFIED SECRET CONFERENCE OF CHINESE LEADERS AUTONOMY MOVEMENT BEYOND LOCAL CONTROL

Peiping, Yesterday.

The general impression here is that events are rapidly heading for a crisis, which may come as soon as Monday. It is learned that a secret conference of the local Chinese leaders lasted from last evening until 4 a.m. to-day, at the conclusion of which an important telegram was despatched, asking Nanking for more specific instructions. It is understood that the telegram was addressed to the Generalissimo, Dr. H. H. Kung and General Ho Ying-chin.

A Japanese military spokesman said that it was understood that the telegram said that the autonomy movement is developing now beyond the powers of the local authorities to stop it. On the other hand well-informed Chinese sources declare that the Japanese have now expressed the view that the autonomy of Hopei and Chahar would satisfy them, and that that area might still be nominally under Nanking.

It is reported that General Dolhara, who, it was rumoured, intended to leave to-day, is now remaining for two or three more days. — Reuter.

AUTONOMY MOVE IN NORTH

PEIPING REPORTS ON ITS ORIGIN

ALLEGED JAPANESE SCHEME

[From Our Own Correspondent] Canton, Yesterday.

Yin Ju-keng's declaration of independence at Tungchow is a scheme of the Japanese to force General Chiang Kai-shek to live up to his acceptance of China-Japan-Manchukuo co-operation, a Sino-Japanese economic alliance, and a Sino-Japanese expedition against the Communists, according to Peiping reports.

The nationalisation of silver has angered the Japanese militarists who regard the measure as a violation of the Sino-Japanese economic alliance. Major-General Kenji Dolhara, the "Lawrence of Manchuria," immediately persuaded the northern generals to declare independence from Nanking. Having failed in his plot, General Dolhara set up the Jin Ju-keng "autonomy movement" in Tungchow, 15 miles East of Peiping.

Tungchow is located within the demilitarised zone as formed under the Tangku armistice of May 31, 1932. Yin was one of the negotiators of the truce and is quite safe within a zone into which Chinese troops cannot enter.

Peiping reports credit foreign circles as saying that when General Chiang Kai-shek was in Japan in 1927 on retirement he secured Japanese support to return to power and promised not to question what Japan would do in Manchuria and to recognise special Japanese rights in North China.

ARRESTED CHRISTIANS RELEASED BY JAPANESE

Peiping, Yesterday.—A message from Mukden states that the Japanese authorities have released a further eight Chinese Christians, of whom between 60 and 70 were arrested a few weeks ago. The latest releases include four British American Tobacco Co. employees and one Presbyterian pastor.—Reuter.

WANG AGAIN TO RESIGN?

Official Announcement Expected To-day

Nanking, Yesterday. Mr. Wang Ching-wei, who has already submitted his resignation from the Presidency of the Executive Yuan, is generally credited with the intention of relinquishing the Foreign Portfolio also. The Executive Yuan is expected to make an announcement concerning Mr. Wang Ching-wei's intention to-morrow. — Reuter.

SZE INTERVIEWS HULL

Nothing Divulged

Washington, Yesterday. Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese Ambassador, to-day interviewed Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, whom he informed of the latest developments in the North China separatist movement.

Asked by pressmen whether attention had been called to the Japanese obligations under the Nine-Power Treaty, Dr. Sze declared that any statement must come from Mr. Hull.—Reuter.

GRIM TRAGEDY IN LONDON

London, yesterday.—Disaster befell the Haggis at the annual dinner of the St. Andrew's Club in London, attended by 500 Scotsmen last evening.

The Haggis was being carried round the dining-hall in traditional fashion amid the strains of pipes, when the chefs accidentally tilted the platter.

The Haggis dropped to the floor. It bounced, but did not burst.—Reuter.

MANOEUVRES IN THE AIR

"ENEMY PLANES" ENGAGED

SOOCHOW SUBJECTED TO "ATTACK"

Nanking, Yesterday. Sham battles staged between Government planes and the "enemy planes" near the Tai Hu Lake and Soochow yesterday afternoon, featured the second day of the air defence manoeuvres held in Nanking, Hangchow and Chinkiang on Thursday.

Shortly after noon yesterday, the Air Defence Headquarters commissioned several planes to pursue the "enemy planes," which were reported to have waged victorious battles in Hangchow. A fierce encounter subsequently took place near the Tai Hu Lake, during which the "enemy planes" retreated.

At 3 o'clock, it was reported that nine "enemy planes" were going to attack Soochow. Emergency measures were immediately taken in the historical Chinese city. The "enemy planes" finally returned to their base at 4.30 o'clock the same afternoon, and the "martial law" was called off.—Central News Agency.

ABYSSINIAN SUCCESSES UNCONFIRMED

STRICTER ITALIAN CENSORSHIP

Addis Ababa, Yesterday. The official announcement of the recapture of Ual Ual and the rumour of the re-occupation of Makalle are alike unconfirmed. The Government has telegraphed the respective commanders for further information.

An Asmara message states that the Italians are introducing stricter censorship. Marshal Badoglio, receiving journalists, said that the object of the move was to prevent information reaching the enemy.

"I shall hold correspondents responsible for what their papers publish," he said, "but I hope that this necessity will seldom arise."

He added that the war was being waged by the whole Italian people, not by individuals. "Therefore I will not allow the names of individual commanders, even my own, to be mentioned."

TRIBUTE TO DE BONO Marshal Badoglio paid a tribute to Marshal de Bono. He said: "He left me an excellent situation. Nothing will be changed, but I shall try to perfect what I have found and carry it to the conclusion desired by Italy."

A Rome message announces that Vito Mussolini, the Duke's nephew, editor of the Popolo d'Italia, has secured a pilot's licence and is leaving for East Africa.—Reuter.

Jijiga Next To Be Bombed

Addis Ababa: The Emperor's caravan arrived at the northern section of the front near Dessal early yesterday evening. Great precautions had been taken for the protection of the Imperial party on the journey. Bomb-proof shelters had been prepared at the places where the Emperor broke his journey, while an Abyssinian aeroplane made a reconnoitring flight.

A Djibouti message states that Italian aviators, according to a report from Harrar, dropped pamphlets over Jijiga, warning the population to leave the city, since it would be bombarded in the near future.

The Indian tradesmen of the city, as well as numerous Somali tribes under British protection, are fleeing from Jijiga to Hargaisa in British Somaliland, and the caravan route is thronged with natives. All the shops and bazars in Jijiga have closed and the strong garrison of the city have taken up their positions in carefully camouflaged trenches.—Reuter.

BRITISH DEFENCE IMPREGNABLE

NORTH ROUTE UNDER NAVAL CONTROL

DESERT HAZARDS WOULD ALSO ACT AS DETERRENT

Alexandria, Yesterday.

Whatever troops Signor Mussolini may order to Libya, the talk of the invasion of Egypt is no longer regarded seriously, states Reuter's special correspondent in the Canal zone, who says that he has not met a single authority in Egypt anxious about a possible attack from Libya.

The reasons for this feeling include, firstly, the 300 miles of waterless desert offering no shelter from air attack and no cover to assaulting troops; secondly, the virtual absence of roads; thirdly, the presence of fierce armed Arabs mounted on camels who could harass the Italian flanks; fourthly, the network of British machine-gun posts protected by barbed wire; and fifthly, the maze of trenches manned by British and Egyptian troops.

It is not considered likely that an attempt by the Italian fleet to draw off the British fleet from the coast of Libya would succeed, so that any Italian column advancing along the northern road would be subject to naval gunfire. A southern column would be held up by machine-gun and artillery fire at Mersa Matruh, even if it escaped bombing by British aircraft as it advanced across the desert.

If the Italians got beyond Mersa Matruh they would encounter the bottle neck of Borg-el-arab, only 200 miles wide, bounded by the sea on the one side and marshes on the other, guarded by machine-gun posts in mounds.

The final obstacle would be the heavily-fortified environs of Alexandria. Although Libya is within air range of Italy, the greatly strengthened Royal Air Force in Egypt would be able to repel an air attack.

Other cables on Abyssinia will be found on Page 11.

ROME CABINET MEETING

Rome: The Italian Cabinet met this morning for the first time since the outbreak of hostilities. While it is emphasised in official circles that the meeting was the first of a number of normal sittings and not in response to an emergency summons, a Government spokesman stated that the Ministers would naturally review the position created by the sanctions.

The counter-attacks against sanctions framed at the last meeting of the Fascist Grand Council would all be discussed in detail, he declared.

DEADLOCK IN GREECE

King And Kondylis Both Stand Firm

Athens, Yesterday. The constitutional crisis is still at a deadlock. Both the King and General Kondylis are unwilling in the matter of the proposed amnesty. The King has turned to the leader of the Progressive Party, M. Demerdjic, who is expected to form a new Ministry.

Meanwhile a remarkable transformation has occurred owing to the King's attitude. The Venizelists are warmly supporting the monarch, whom they had previously detested, while the Royalists and Kondylis are losing their affection for him. The Kondylis Minister, M. Mavro Michalis, has returned to the King when he returned to Athens.

The King remains a favourite among the people. His amnesty decree is expected to be signed to-day by the Demerdjic Ministry, after which general elections will be held.—Reuter.

"FAIRPLAY FOR CAPITAL"

Dr. Schacht On "Little Fuehrers"

STINGING ATTACK ON RADICAL NAZI IDEAS

Berlin, Yesterday.

Dr. H. Schacht, the President of the Reichsbank, addressing the Academy of German Law, appealed for fairplay for capital in order to enable Germany to continue her constructive programme. He criticised the application of radical Nazi ideas to industry and made stinging observations about "Little Fuehrers."

"We cannot forget that the products of capital, for example, harvesters and mechanical ploughs, are indispensable for feeding a nation of 65,000,000 people," he said. "Nothing requires a capitalist foundation as much as a modern army. Guns, aeroplanes, submarines and everything belonging to modern defence are unthinkable except in the biggest development of capitalism."

THE ISLAND

By MAURICE BARING

"PERHAPS we had better not land after all," said Lewis, as he was stepping into the boat; "we can explore this island on our way home."

"We had much better land now," said Stewart; "we shall get to Tenerife to-morrow in any case. Besides, an island that's not on the chart is too exciting a thing to wait for."

Lewis gave in to his younger companion, and the two ornithologists, who were on their way to the Canary Islands in search of eggs, were rowed to shore.

"They had better fetch us at sunset," answered Stewart.

"I don't think so," said Lewis; but after a pause he told the sailors that if they should be more than half an hour late they were not to wait, but to come back in the morning at ten. Lewis and Stewart walked on the sandy bay up a steep basaltic cliff which sloped right down to the beach.

"The island is volcanic," said Stewart.

"All the islands about here are volcanic," said Lewis. "We shan't be able to climb much in this heat," he added.

"It will be all right when we get to the trees," said Stewart. Presently they reached the top of the cliff. The basaltic rock ceased and an open grassy incline was before them, covered with myrtle and cactus bushes; and farther off a thick wood, to the east of which rose a hill sparsely dotted with olive trees. They sat down on the grass, panting. The sun beat down on the dry rock; there was not a cloud in the sky nor a ripple on the emerald sea. In the air there was a strange aromatic scent; and the stillness was heavy.

"No birds," remarked Lewis gloomily.

"I haven't seen one—the island is extraordinarily still," said Stewart.

The farther they had penetrated inland the more oppressive and sultry the air had become; and the pungent aroma they had noticed directly was stronger. It was like that of mint, and yet it was not mint; and although sweet it was not agreeable. The heat seemed to weigh even on Stewart's spirits, for he sat smoking in silence, and no longer urged Lewis to continue their exploration.

"I think the island is inhabited," said Lewis, "and that the houses are on the other side. There are some sheep and some goats on that hill opposite. Do you see?"

"Yes," said Stewart. "I think they are mouflon, but I don't think the island is inhabited all the same." No sooner were the words out of his mouth than he started, and, rising to his feet, cried, "Look there!" and he pointed to a thin wreath of smoke which was rising from the wood.

Their languor seemed to leave them, and they ran down the hill and reached the wood once more. Just as they were about to enter it Lewis stooped and pointed to a small plant with white flowers and three oval-shaped leaves rising from the root.

"What's that?" he asked Stewart, who was the better botanist of the two. The flowers were quite white, and each had six pointed petals.

"It's a kind of garlic, I think," said Stewart.

Lewis bent down over it. "It doesn't smell," he said. "It's not unlikely moly, Allium flavum; only it's white instead of yellow, and the flowers are larger. I'm going to take it with me."

He began scooping away the earth with a knife so as to take

"I don't think it can be inhabited," said Lewis.

"Perhaps it's merely a volcanic island cast up by a sea disturbance," suggested Stewart.

"Look at those trees," said Lewis, pointing to the wood in the distance.

"What about them?" asked Stewart.

"They are oak trees," said Lewis. "Do you know why I didn't want to land?" he asked abruptly. "I am not superstitious, you know, but as I got into the boat I distinctly heard a voice calling out, 'Don't land!'"

Stewart laughed. "I think it was a good thing to land," he said. "Let's go on now."

They walked towards the wood, and the nearer they got to it the more their surprise increased. It was a thick wood of large oak trees which must certainly have been a hundred years old. When they had got quite close to it they paused.

"Before we explore the wood," said Lewis, "let us climb the hill and see if we can get a general view of the island."

Stewart agreed, and they climbed the hill in silence. When they reached the top they found it was not the highest point of the island, but only one of several hills, so that the view was limited. The valleys seemed to be densely wooded and the oak wood was larger than they had imagined. They lay down and rested and lit their pipes.

"Where is the chimney?" cried Lewis, who was the first to speak.

It was a one-storeyed building, with large windows, (which had no glass in them) reaching to the ground, wider at the bottom than at the top. The house was overgrown with creepers; the roof was flat. They entered in silence by the large open doorway and found themselves in a low hall. There was no furniture and the floor was mossy.

"It's rather like an Egyptian tomb," said Stewart, and he shivered. The hall led into a farther room, which was open in the centre to the sky, like the impluvium of a Roman house.

It also contained a square basin of water, which was filled by water bubbling from a lion's mouth carved in stone. Beyond the impluvium there were two smaller rooms, in one of which there was a kind of raised stone platform. The house was completely deserted and empty. Lewis and Stewart said little; they examined the house in silent amazement.

"Look," said Lewis, pointing to one of the walls. Stewart examined the wall and noticed that there were traces on it of a faded painted decoration.

"It's like the wall paintings at Pompeii," he said.

"I think the house is modern," remarked Lewis. "It was probably built by some eccentric, at the beginning of the nineteenth century, who did it up in Empire style."

"Do you know what time it is?" said Stewart suddenly. "The sun has set and it's growing dark."

"We must go at once," said Lewis; "we'll come back here to-morrow." They walked on in silence. The wood was dim in the twilight, a stifling breeze made the trees rustle now and again, but the air was just as sultry as ever.

out the plant by the roots. After he had been working for some minutes he exclaimed, "This is the toughest plant I've ever seen; I can't get it out." He was at last successful, but as he pulled the root he gave a cry of surprise.

"There's no bulb," he said.

"Look. Only a black root."

Stewart examined the plant. "I can't make it out," he said. Lewis wrapped the plant in his handkerchief and put it in his pocket. They entered the wood. The air was still more sultry here than outside, and the stillness even more oppressive. There were no birds and not a vestige of bird life.

"This exploration is evidently a waste of time as far as birds are concerned," remarked Lewis. At that moment there was a rustle in the undergrowth, and five pigs crossed their path and disappeared, grunting. Lewis started, and for some reason he could not account for, shuddered; he looked at Stewart, who appeared unconcerned.

"They are not wild," said Stewart. They walked on in silence. The place and its heavy atmosphere had again affected their spirits. When they spoke it was almost in a whisper. Lewis wished they had not landed, but he could give no reason to himself for his wish. After they had been walking for about twenty minutes they suddenly came on an open space and a low white house. They stopped and looked at each other.

"Where is the chimney?" cried Lewis, who was the first to speak. It was a one-storeyed building, with large windows, (which had no glass in them) reaching to the ground, wider at the bottom than at the top. The house was overgrown with creepers; the roof was flat. They entered in silence by the large open doorway and found themselves in a low hall. There was no furniture and the floor was mossy.

It also contained a square basin of water, which was filled by water bubbling from a lion's mouth carved in stone. Beyond the impluvium there were two smaller rooms, in one of which there was a kind of raised stone platform. The house was completely deserted and empty. Lewis and Stewart said little; they examined the house in silent amazement.

"Look," said Lewis, pointing to one of the walls. Stewart examined the wall and noticed that there were traces on it of a faded painted decoration.

"It's like the wall paintings at Pompeii," he said.

"I think the house is modern," remarked Lewis. "It was probably built by some eccentric, at the beginning of the nineteenth century, who did it up in Empire style."

"Do you know what time it is?" said Stewart suddenly. "The sun has set and it's growing dark."

"We must go at once," said Lewis; "we'll come back here to-morrow." They walked on in silence. The wood was dim in the twilight, a stifling breeze made the trees rustle now and again, but the air was just as sultry as ever.

Cowan and Bailey, above, the Hollywood Entertainers, will appear at the Hong Kong Hotel on the occasion of the season's opening Gala Night on Saturday next. They entertain at the piano, with the banjo and with singing.

The shape of the trees seemed fantastic and almost threatening in the dimness, and the rustle of the leaves was like a human moan. Once or twice they seemed to hear the grunting of pigs in the undergrowth, and to catch sight of bristly backs.

"We don't seem to be getting any nearer the end," said Stewart after a time. "I think we've taken the wrong path." They stopped. "I remember that tree," said Stewart, pointing to a twisted oak; "we must go straight on from there to the left." They walked on, and in ten minutes' time found themselves once more at the back of the house. It was now quite dark.

"We shall never find the way now," said Lewis. "We had better sleep in the house." They walked through the house into one of the farthest rooms and settled themselves on the mossy platform. The night was warm and starry, the house deathly still except for the splashing of the water in the basin.

"We shan't get any food," Lewis said.

"I'm not hungry," said Stewart, and Lewis knew that he could not have eaten anything to save his life. He felt utterly exhausted and yet not at all sleepy. Stewart, on the other hand, was overcome with drowsiness. He lay down on the mossy platform and fell asleep almost instantly. Lewis lit a pipe; the vague forebodings he had felt in the morning had returned to him, only increased tenfold. He felt an uncomfortable physical discomfort, an inexplicable sensation of uneasiness.

Then he realised what it was. He felt there was someone in the house besides themselves, someone or something that was always behind him, moving when he moved, and watching him. He walked into the impluvium, but heard nothing and saw nothing. There were none of the thousand little sounds, such as the barking of a dog, or the hoot of a night-bird, which generally complete the silence of a summer night. Everything was uncannily still.

He returned to the room. He would have given anything to be back on the yacht, for besides the physical sensation of discomfort and of something watching him he also felt the unmistakable sense of impending danger that had been with him nearly all day.

He lay down and at last fell into a doze. As he dozed he heard a subdued noise, a kind of buzzing, such as is made by a spinning-wheel or a shuttle on a loom, and more strongly than ever he felt that he was being watched. Then all at once his body seemed to grow stiff with fright. He saw someone enter the room from the impluvium.

It was a dim, veiled figure, the figure of a woman. He could not distinguish her features, but he had the impression that she was strangely beautiful; she was bearing a cup in her hands, and she walked towards Stewart, and bent over him, offering him the cup. Something in Lewis prompted him to cry out with all his might. "Don't drink! Don't drink!" He heard the words echoing in the air, just as he had heard the voice in the boat; he felt that it was imperative to call out, and yet he could not; he was paralysed; the words would not come. He formed them with his lips, but no sound came. He tried with all his might to rise and scream, and he could not move. Then a sudden cold faintness came upon him, and he remembered no more till he woke and found the sun shining brightly. Stewart was lying with his eyes closed, moaning loudly in his sleep.

Lewis tried to wake him. He opened his eyes and stared with a fixed, meaningless stare. Lewis tried to lift him from the platform, and then a horrible thing happened. Stewart struggled violently and made a snarling noise, which froze the blood in Lewis's veins.

He ran out of the house with cold hands of sweat on his forehead. He ran through the wood to the shore, and there he found the boat. He rowed back to the yacht and fetched some quinine. Then, together with the skipper, the steward, and some other sailors, he returned to the ominous house. They found it empty. There was no trace of Stewart. They shouted in the wood till they were hoarse, but no answer broke the heavy stillness.

Then, sending for the rest of the crew, Lewis organised a regular search over the whole island. This lasted till sunset, and they returned in the evening without having found any trace of Stewart or of any other human being. In the night a high wind rose, which soon became a gale; they were obliged to weigh anchor so as not to be dashed against the island, and for twenty-four hours they underwent a terrific tossing. Then the storm subsided as quickly as it had come.

They made for the island once more and reached the spot where they had anchored three days before. There was no trace of the island. It had disappeared.

When they reached Tenerife the next day they found that everybody was talking of the great tidal wave which had caused such damage and destruction in the islands.

BOYS' NERVE TEST

Heads On Railway Lines

Three Prestwick boys placed their heads on the railway line in the path of an oncoming train. Later they appeared at Ayr before Sheriff Menzies, who was told that the boys' prank was in the nature of a nerve test. The one who kept his head on the line the longest was adjudged to have the strongest nerve. The prank had caused great annoyance to the railway company as it had frequently held up trains.

The boys were severely reprimanded.

FURS HANDLED AS CLOTH

The Short Town Model Is A Favourite

FURRIERS have actually learned to handle skins in the way a tailor does a fabric. They mould and model and fashion with "dressmaker touches." They provide a wealth of detail that is refreshing, that keeps a fur coat from being just a fur coat. Nutria is shirred, caracul is tucked. Persian is ruffled, kidskin is worked so that it takes on the most up-to-date lines.

Coats come in all lengths, but the note of the season is the short one that barely reaches the knees. It permits splendid freedom for walking and has the snap and ease of a suit coat. Moreover, models such as these are interestingly trimmed.

The Tunic Line

There are short gray kidskin coats with the tunic line. The shoulders are shaped by tucks that open out and give the sleeves the now required fullness. This is caught in at the wrist by turned-back cuffs; the cuff motif is repeated on the pockets. The little stand-up collar is trimly tailored. The large buttons and belt are of gray cord that tones into the darkest shade of the fur.

The nutria swagger coat, though not quite as short, is of a practical town length; it has a swing back, the fullness of which is gathered in at the neck. The beauty of it is that the fullness lies smoothly across the shoulders and smuggles easily into the collar line. This type of coat will be a great favourite as a part of a tweed ensemble; many such models are being made with tweed skirts or dresses and lined with the same material.

Another version of the short swing coat is the Persian lamb. It is so youthful in style that any little debutante would love to trot out to luncheon in it. No longer need we associate Persian lamb with wealthy dowagers; this year it has taken on a new lease of life. The bulky styles of old have been abandoned. Persian has emerged in jaunty peplum jackets. In one instance it is handled in strips mounted on satin (about one inch of this appeared between the fur stripes), which gave the coat a supple richness.

As can be seen from every coat, collars are built into flattering frames for the face. There are spreading butterfly shapes and winged points; there are wide scarfs and straight Chinese collars.

FROM PARIS

NEW touches of colour will be added to Autumn afternoon ensembles by matching velvet shoes and hats. For example, begonia velvet pumps and beret are shown with a pine-green broadcloth costume.

At the forthcoming collections gilded or silvered cork costume jewellery will be launched. Long tubular buckles, clips and other ornaments will be made in massive fluted column motifs. In design, this cork jewellery is inspired by the Italian primitives.

Chic gauntlets are pleated at the back from the knuckles to the edge. The pleats can be held in place by a loop and button at the wrist, or if the wearer prefers they may flare untrammelled.

These gloves are shown in various fabrics, but they are smartest in suede.

Addresses and telephone numbers are outmoding monograms on both daytime bags and evening handkerchiefs. They may be encrusted, embroidered or stamped. A well-known elegante is wearing unusual daytime clips which literally cover her ears. They are shaped like lovebirds and are made of stained, carved ivory, and have enamelled eyes.

FURNISHING FASHIONS

THERE are all sorts of lovely and practical materials for those who are planning new colour schemes for their rooms this autumn.

Hand-blocked linens stand high on this list. They have all the durability of ordinary linen, but as the name infers the pattern is the work of an individual artist. Colours, therefore, are perfect and designs intricate. For example, natural coloured linen is stamped with zigzag green branches bearing red-brown oak leaves; another has a feather effect twined into a geometrical design, carried out in lettuce green on a pale lemon ground.

Yet another fascinating material is the new satin-faced cotton which shines like silk and hangs splendidly for curtains; while for pane curtains the ever-popular net is now made in shaded tones with a pattern of interlacing circles. This design is most striking in a pale crushed strawberry, the light catching the silk finish at the folds making the colour stand out splendidly.

Frosted glass is again seen in pendant light fittings; one very beautiful idea being a centre globe hung by a single chain; on to the globe are attached separate leaves which reflect the light at different angles and at the same time look most decorative.

For ornaments, metal and wood are much in favour. Very tastefully designed, they lend distinction to any room.

There are boats with a curving sail and a solitary sailor, winged birds in full flight, and even the famous "giraffe-necked" women of the East, all beautifully moulded.

SUMMER raincoats express themselves in terms of white rubberized crepe. They may be counted on for chic, for Paris has decreed white coats for summer. Moreover, it's a handy garment to take away with you, packing neatly and uncrushably into a suitcase.

RUMOURS of spun glass embroidery are in the offing. Also that gold and silver (synthetic) chains will be used for applique work or hemstitching effects in place of silk or braid. Said also to be a direct outcome of the recent Italian exhibition in Paris.

TWO-COLOUR SPORTS SUITS.

At last we've arrived at the two-colour sports suit. A jacket of heavy white linen, very broad of shoulder and very nipped in at the waist, has four big pearl fastenings. The skirt is black linen with a thin white stripe. Both skirt and jacket can do double service with other skirts and jackets, proving the new idea a handy addition to the wardrobe as well as a smart one.

SPORTING WAYS TO HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Squash Rackets

SQUASH rackets is the ideal game for the young and busy woman with a good share of physical stamina. This most thriving infant among British games is making tremendous strides in popularity among women, so well does it fit in with the needs of modern woman with her hundred-and-one activities.

Here is a game with the most attractive sporting aspects and providing the most effectively slimming kind of exercise. Half an hour at this game brings almost every muscle into play, keeps you constantly on the move, and stimulates the whole body to healthful activity. A hard shower bath and a brisk rub-down after the game should leave you looking and feeling your best.

Any Odd Time

A game can be so conveniently fitted in at any odd time when there is an hour or less to spare, time of day and weather making no difference. Whereas squash courts were few and far between not so long ago, nowadays they are fairly plentiful and more and more are being built.

This game can be taken up by a woman without fear of strain, provided she does not attempt to play for too long on end or too often. My experience is that a game lasting half an hour is quite enough, and if you do this three times a week you are getting as much violent exercise as is good for you. A daily game is only for those who are in strict training.

Squash is a splendid winter game for women provided it is played with discrimination. By this I mean, before taking it up consider whether it suits your physique and particular needs. If you feel sure it is the right game for you, its effect on your health and figure should be most satisfactory.

YOUR beach cape may be as gay as you please for next season. Heavy crash linen in loud plaids brightly coloured is the material. This cape has a dual mission, for when spread out it acts as a rug on which to sunbake, and can be easily washed. It comprises an oblong piece of material, about six by four feet, and has a silk drawstring at one side to pull up round the neck.

KOWLOON HOLD FUSILIERS TO ONE GOAL IN SENIOR DIVISION

RECREIO OUTPLAY SOUTH CHINA "B"

BUT FAULTY SHOOTING LOSES POINT

WRONG TACTICS IN OPENING HALF

SOUTH China "B" were featured yet again in a goalless draw yesterday, when they met the Recreio in their First Division soccer encounter. It was rather a tame game, flavoured with but little excitement.

The Recreio should have decided the result during the first half. Chances galore came their way through clever approach work, yet in front of goal their inside forwards fell over themselves in their efforts to avoid shouldering the responsibility of shooting!

Too little attention was paid to the wingmen, with the result that Bertie Gosano, Gomes and Castilho were always endeavouring to break through a defence that outnumbered them. C. Marques, on the right wing, was certainly given quite a few good passes, but his slowness in parting with the ball invariably left the other forwards too well marked to make use of the pass when it eventually came.

VITAL SENIOR LEAGUE MATCH FOR TO-DAY

BOLD MOVE BY POLICE

GOOD PROGRAMME THIS AFTERNOON

Caroline Hill will this afternoon represent the Mokka of thousands of soccer fans who will flock to the headquarters of the South China Athletic Association to witness the champions, South China "A", in action against the present League leaders, the Police.

South China "A" are still undecided as to whom will fill the left-half berth, but this will make very little difference as Leo Kwok-wai and Lau Hing-choi are both as good as one another.

The Police have made a very bold move in experimenting at this stage of the League, and especially against the champions. They are playing Parker at inside-left and will include North at left-half, instead of Britton, has so far given satisfaction!

Midway Reshuffle

Lee Wai-long will commence as leader, but there is every possibility that the game will end with Fung King-cheong leading the line with Lee on his left and Chan Kwai-liang on his right!

In any case, the game is expected to be one of the best of the year and will act as a definite pointer to the championship result.

There are three other First Division games. The Navy are fielding a very strong side against the Athletic having the services of men from the Kent and Dorsetshire, but the Midway players left the Colony this morning with the Depot ship for the South.

Saints Players Missing

The East Lanes, and the Saints will clash at Sookunpoo where a fast game is anticipated. The latter will be without the services of A. Ward, their clever inside-right, and Gurbachan Singh, the brilliant Indian leader, who will be engaged in a Mamak Hockey Tournament match.

South China "B" should secure both points from Kowloon in the remaining senior encounter. There are two good Junior division matches, the East Lanes, encountering the Sappers, while the latter two teams are old rivals for Second Division honours, and a keen match is anticipated.

The following is to-day's programme:

FIRST DIVISION
Navy	vs Athletic (Causeway Bay, 4.00 p.m.)
S. China "A"	vs Police (Caroline Hill, 4.00 p.m.)
East Lanes	vs St. Joseph's (Sookunpoo, 4.00 p.m.)
Kowloon	vs S. China "B" (Kowloon, 4.00 p.m.)
SECOND DIVISION
East Lanes	vs Engineers (Sookunpoo, 2.30 p.m.)
Navy	vs Athletic (Causeway Bay, 2.30 p.m.)

George Tsang, above, former captain and centre-forward of South China "B", was not included in the team yesterday for the first time since the entry of the side in the senior division over a year ago.

FUSILIERS TOO GOOD FOR KOWLOON

BUT SCORE ONLY ONCE

COAKLEY'S LEFT-FOOTED DRIVE DECIDES ISSUE

The First Division soccer encounter between the Fusiliers and Kowloon, played on the latter's ground yesterday, resulted in a victory for the soldiers by the only goal scored in the game.

This victory was well merited and as a result the Fusiliers are now temporary leaders of the division.

The civilians were the more aggressive during the latter stages of the first half, but the second portion of the game was definitely in favour of the Fusiliers, Kowloon being lucky to have but one goal scored against them.

Kowloon were the first to come into the limelight. Soon after the commencement G. White tested Rowlands with a hard shot from close range, and then Oppenheim missed a "bitter" when he completely missed the ball five yards out with only Rowlands to beat!

Coakley's Winning Goal
The only goal of the game was scored 20 minutes after the interval when Talbot beat G. White and passed through to Coakley who sent in a terrific left-footed drive. Boyes dived and just touched it out of the danger zone, but Hughes dashed in and netted whilst Boyes was on the ground. The rest of the game was featured by Fusiliers shooting practice, Boyes bringing off good saves from Talbot, Roberts, Condey and Evans.

Kowloon:—Boyes; Everest, Eastman; Kemp, Bliss, Boyd; W. Knox; V. White; G. White, Oppenheim and D. Knox.
Fusiliers:—Rowlands; Wheeler, Kenting; Wanklyn, Talbot, Tucker; Hughes, Harrison, Coakley, Evans and Roberts.

SIX FOR LINCOLNS
A spirited Third Division soccer encounter was witnessed on the Chatham Road ground yesterday between the Lincolns and St. Joseph's, the Lincolns winning by 6 goals to nil.

Rush opened the scoring, and goals came with a rush from that moment, three being added within five minutes through Berryman, Hildrow and Rush.

After the changeover play became very even, but St. Joseph's were not strong enough to penetrate the soldiers' defence, and towards the close, two further military goals were added by Stone and Chisholm.

GOALLESS DRAW
Engineer Forwards Have Off Day

A keenly fought game in the Third Division of the soccer League at Sookunpoo yesterday, between the Fusiliers and Engineers, resulted in a goalless draw.

The Fusiliers had the best of the game in the first half, and Singlehorn narrowly missed scoring from a good pass by Daniels soon after the start. The Fusiliers forward line retained a good combination, but their many attacks were frustrated by good defensive work on the part of Revell and Munfield.

The Engineers forwards were ragged and much needless short passing, but they were not without a goal from 10 yards out with a palpable miskick.

ing occurred when long shots would probably have gained points.

The Engineers rallied in the second half, but owing to bad shooting missed several open opportunities. Strike, the Engineers pivot, missing an open goal from 10 yards out with a palpable miskick.

FUSILIERS SCORE ONLY GOAL

Lincolns Beaten In Even Game

The Fusiliers beat the Lincolns in their Second Division soccer encounter at Prince Edward Road yesterday by the narrow margin of one goal to nil.

As the score indicates, both teams were well matched, and the game proved to be a good exhibition of fast soccer with plenty of excitement around the goal areas.

In the early stages both eleven carried out many swift actions but the reliable defence put up by the Fusiliers in Slack and Gaisley successfully averted a score by the Lincolns. In return, the Fusiliers displayed plenty of energy in the first half, when they had the Lincolns' custodian, Taylor, busy making clearances in good style.

The Welshman scored the only goal of the game, and it was indeed a fine goal from some 20 yards, by Dennis, their centre-forward.

SPOILS DIVIDED

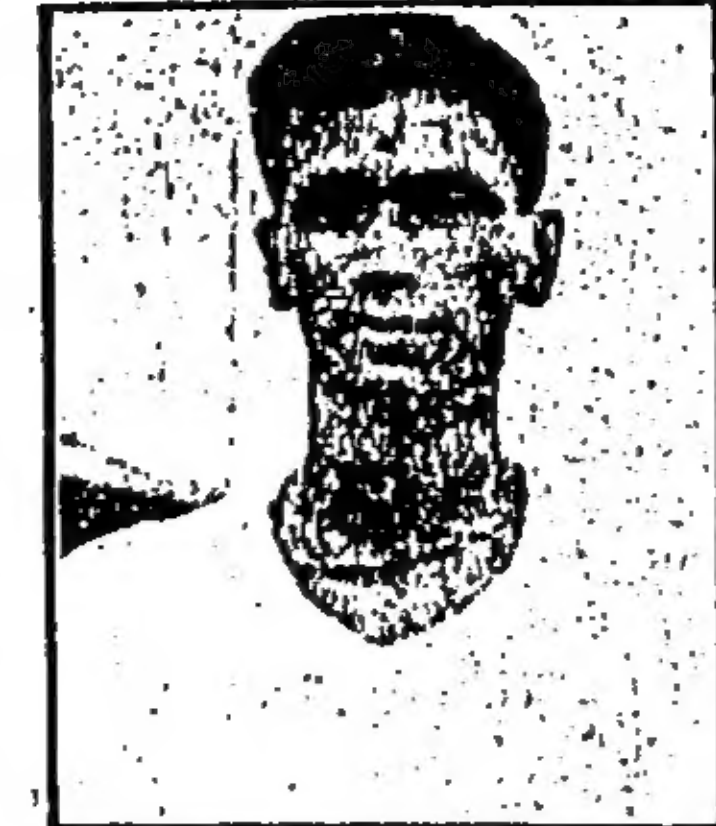

East Lanes. Held By Medicals

The Medicals and East Lanes shared the points in their Third Division soccer engagement at Prince Edward Road yesterday, both teams scoring once.

The Medicals scored their only goal just before half time as the result of a smart shot from Yould. The East Lanes opened a strong attack after the interval and scored several corners, but failed to net.

Wright, in the Medicals goal, received a nasty knock which gave him a bad shaking. After a two-minute break, however, he returned to his position and managed to carry on.

Shortly afterwards the East Lanes levelled the score when Crooks netted with a swift goal, the ball deceiving Wright.

L. Gomes, above, the former St. Joseph's full-back, was featured in a spirited display for the Liga Portuguesa yesterday in their Third Division clash against the Chinese Police.

CLUB SCORE

FIVE AGAINST R.A. LYEMUN

But Gunners Unlucky To Lose

LOST OPPORTUNITIES

After a fast and exciting premier division soccer encounter at Sookunpoo yesterday the Club defeated the Artillery (Lyemun) by 5 goals to 3.

Exchanges throughout the game were extremely even and the Artillery were unlucky to lose. The Club forwards, however, grasped opportunities immediately they occurred and scored on every occasion. Elliott, the Club leader, working well and hard throughout and being responsible for three goals.

The Club were the first to attack and Gilchrist, the left-half, sent in a long shot which just failed. The Gunners carried the play into the Club half and for a short period Hodger was kept very busy, despite good defence work by Sykes and Hill. Morton, the Artillery centre-half, had very bad luck on two occasions, two of his headers striking the crossbar.

Elliott Opens Scoring

Elliott, the Club leader, then led a very strong attack and managed to shoot when 15 yards out, the ball almost reaching the mark. Two minutes afterwards, from a good pass by Hynes, Elliott sent in an unstoppable shot.

Bickford's passing was erratic, and many of his kicks went wide of their mark. Sparkes, the Gunners' left-wing, though shooting and centring well when he received the ball, was neglected.

After a melee 10 yards from the Artillery goalmouth Elliott seized an opportunity and shot, and the ball being deflected off a defender into the net to send the Club further ahead.

Edmunds Scores
In the second half the soldiers attacked, and Edmunds, their pivot, receiving a header from Brown, reduced the arrears from close quarters.

After a strong attack on the Gunners' goal, Elliott completed his hat-trick, sending in a perfectly placed shot which Macmillan had no chance of saving, and then, from at least 30 yards out, Farrow sent in a beautifully judged shot, the ball entering the net between the crossbar and the goalkeeper's hands.

Sparkes then scored a very desirable goal, and immediately afterwards, from the replacement, Knight, the Artillery inside-left, scored with a good kick from close quarters, Rodgers being well banted.

Bickford, the Club left-wing, who played an excellent game throughout the second half, sent in a shot which Macmillan caught, but the ball slipped over his head into the net.

Club:—Rodgers; Sykes and Hill; Milne, Farrow and Gilchrist; Hynes, Brown, Elliott, E. Strange and Bickford.

Artillery (Lyemun):—Macmillan; Fisher and Clancy; Taylor, Morton and Worthington; Rivers, Brown, Edmunds, Knight and Sparkes.

EIGHT AGAINST KOWLOON

Clarke Adds Five To Season's Tally

The Second Division soccer encounter between Kowloon and the Combined Corps, played at Kowloon yesterday, proved a farce, the soldiers winning a very one-sided game by eight clear goals Clarke "bagging" five!

From the opening stages of the game the issue was never in doubt, the soldiers' forward line being in

CLUB AND LINCOLNS SUCCEED

RECREIO SURPRISE IN JUNIOR DIVISION

ENGINEERS SECURE A POINT

SEVERAL surprises featured yesterday's local football programme, the biggest being provided by the Recreio, who held South China "B" to a goalless draw, their third in five clashes.

Kowloon surprised their most optimistic supporters by their display against the Fusiliers, holding the Welshman to a solitary goal, while both the Club and Lincolns registered wins.

The race for Second Division honours is gradually narrowing down to two teams, the Fusiliers, who beat the Lincolns in a thrilling clash by an only goal, and the losers, who, despite their defeat, are a game in hand and only two points in arrears. The Recreio caused an upset by beating the Club by the odd goal, while the R.A.O.C. and R.A.S.C. combined team swamped Kowloon to record their fifth win in nine games.

The Third Division will probably provide the closest race in many seasons for championship honours as a result of the Fusiliers being held by the Engineers to a goalless draw, while the Chinese Police crept up another rung by just beating the Liga Portuguesa. The Chinese Police have only lost one game in nine and have won seven of the others. The East Lanes, who were making a strong bid for the title, received a check at the hands of the Medicals, being forced to share the points.

LINCOLNS TOO GOOD FOR STONECUTTERS

HIGGINS STRIKES BEST FORM

TWO PENALTIES: TWO GOALS

The touchlines were thronged with spectators to witness a keen First Division soccer struggle between the Lincolns and R.A. Stonecutters at Happy Valley yesterday afternoon, the game ending in a win for the Lincolns by 4 goals to 2.

Barracough was again absent from the R.A. team, but his deputy, Sergeant, played well in his stead. Hall kept a magnificent goal for the Gunners, while Belcher was easily the best half back on the field, his play in the first half being outstanding.

The Lincolns almost scored in the first minute when Higgins headed over the bar following a beautiful combined effort on the part of Clayton and Malpas, the former very cleverly tricking Roscoe. The Gunners' defence did extremely well to subdue the efforts of the opposing forwards in the early stages for Higgins kept his line well together.

Findly's Failing
Good knocking on the part of Belcher and long passes up the field to his forwards enabled the R.A. to threaten the Lincoln goal and Reed was called upon to save from Coyle, Sell and Adams. Findly's fault was that he did not keep up with the play, and often might have turned to good use the passes from his halves had he remedied this fault.

The first goal came from the foot of Higgins. He dashed in among a crowd of players around the R.A. goal and shot high into the net, after Malpas had miskicked. Sergeant placed the Gunners on equal terms during a melee in the goal area.

The R.A. took the lead through Adams, who netted from a penalty kick given against Thompson.

Lincolns Equalise
Higgins equalised eight minutes after the interval when he kicked against a R.A. defender and the ball glanced into the net past a very surprised Hall. Immediately following this, a stinging shot from Ridley was well held by the Gunners custodian. Baldry then scored for the Lincolns from a penalty kick, giving Hall no chance with a well placed shot.

The R.A. tried hard for an equaliser, but Thompson, Deeming and Robson frustrated many good efforts on the part of Adams and his inside men. Sell was rather disappointing.

Higgins was over on the alert and was a good schemer, and it was through him that the issue was placed beyond doubt. He passed to Baldry who centred accurately for Higgins to have no difficulty in tapping past Hall.

Reed played a good, cool game in goal and by no means had a light task. Moody and Edmundson were sound.

Lincolns:—Reed; Moody and Edmundson; Thompson, Deeming and Robson; Clayton, Malpas, Higgins, Ridley and Baldry.

R.A. Stonecutters:—Hall; Price and Lewis; Belcher, Hunt and Roscoe; Findly, Coyle, Adams, Sergeant and Sell.

FINCHER CARRIES BAT FOR 51

Playing on their own ground, the Kowloon Cricket Club beat the Army by 7 wickets in their first-division League cricket match yesterday, a feature of the game being a fine undefeated innings for 51 runs by Teddy Fincher.

The Army won the toss and took first knock, but they found themselves up against some good bowling by R. Lee and Frank Goodwin who between them captured the wickets. The Kowloon skipper showed a glimpse of his old international form and his 6 for 36 runs was fully deserved.

Teddy Fincher was very subdued early in his innings, but towards the end he used the long handle to such good effect that he found the boundary on seven occasions. A. W. Ramsey helped materially with a rapid 21 not out and Kowloon passed their opponents' score with seven wickets in hand.

F.K. Lee Undefeated
For 75

An undefeated knock for 75 by F. K. Lee, which included 10 fours, featured the drawn friendly cricket encounter at the Valley yesterday between Craiggengower "A" and a Combined Schools' side, both teams fielding 12 men.
C.C.C. "A": 158 for 9 dec. (F. K. Lee 75, W. Rapley 24, R. Broadbridge 4 for 30, R. Holden 2 for 20).
Combined Schools: 116 for 10 wickets. (K. M. Baxter 31, N. Booker 21, H. Lee 3 for 10).

MATCH POSTPONED

Owing to the sudden state of the Recreation ground, caused by the overnight rain, the second division league cricket match between the Recreation and the Craiggengower Cricket Club juniors, which was to have been played at King's Park yesterday, had to be postponed.

MR. DE VALERA'S IRELAND

Hatred Of England His Only Policy

Completely Incapable Of Constructive Work

(By SENATOR OLIVER ST. J. GOGARTY)

London. WHEN peace broke out momentarily at the pleasant place, paved with good intentions, which is known as the League of Nations, and agreement was reached, Mr. de Valera found himself in the same division lobby as John Bull. This has been regarded by the people of England who still pay any regard to the Irish Free State as significant. If Geneva were significant, Mr. de Valera would be an absentee, just as he was an absentee when the destiny of this country hung in the balance in Downing-street and in Ottawa. He made what was to have been an important statement on a recent Sunday. The statement was of no importance. It merely assured his supporters in County Clare that his action in lining up Ireland with England was to be regarded as of no more significance than if he lined it up with the Republic of Haiti or the Republic of Panama.

What he did not allude to was the fact that he stated at Geneva that he rejoiced to find himself at the head of a free and independent nation. This tribute to John Bull's grant of independence to the smaller nations associated with Great Britain was most cautiously forgotten.

But some followers of the old Government, now in opposition, are ironically passing resolutions of congratulation to President de Valera with a rider to the effect that it is to be regretted that his appreciation of "this freedom" did not come to him in 1922, when he devastated our country to the tune of £35,000,000 and left many of its sensible people homeless.

Founded On Ignorance
There will be no rapprochement yet with England. Mr. de Valera is utterly and constitutionally incapable of constructive work.

He owes his political position in Ireland, first, to staging John Bull as the immortal and immortal enemy of Ireland; secondly to ignorance, due to the lack of education in Ireland, a lack which is bound to become intensified through the policy of making the Gaelic language compulsory in the schools. Soon we shall be bilingual in our ignorance of both languages.

Irish history goes in recurring cycles of ten or twenty years. Mr.

de Valera thinks in circles. Even were he to patch up a working agreement, he would reconsider it next day.

The trend of Irish politics will always be to the Left—a paralysed crab with the starboard side impotent. The repetition of political history will show his opponents, the I.R.A., the Communists, the Friends of India, etc., coming into the Dail, just as he himself came into it from the mountains.

Education is our ever-present need. Wanting it, the people fed on a political presentation of history (of which nearly everyone is totally ignorant) will become more and more resentful and separatist.

Education Needed
Meanwhile, there is no party who can dare—until the frightfulness of the Black and Tan preparation of us for "Dominion Status" is forgotten—to suggest that all parties should water down their demands in order to achieve a United Ireland.

Lloyd George's salient, Ulster, will never come into the Irish Free State until it be met half way. The index of the probability of Anglo-Irish relations improving can be gauged from the feelings existing at any moment between Dublin and Belfast.

By Ulster's absence the Free State is deprived of sensible business men and fed instead on nightmares of a supposed Gaelic culture by its political Draculas.

Already Mr. de Valera has doffed his Geneva graces with the tall hat he wore in Switzerland. He resumes for native edification his black political cap of maintenance.

But there is hope in the increasing tours. Irishmen are taking. Travel is an education that cannot be misconstrued.

If I were Duce or Ras of Dublin, I would mobilise the whole country and send it on a Cook's tour of Europe. At present Irishmen go on pilgrimages to Geneva and Lourdes.

Anomalies
Mr. de Valera did the right thing in the wrong place when he pledged this country to abide by its contract in Geneva. Had he in Ireland stood by the contract made with England to pay the Annuities he would not find himself in the ludicrous position of representing a free and independent country which is the only member of the League which is suffering from rigorous and ruinous sanctions and at the same time supporting the foreign policy of Great Britain, which imposed them.

But when you play with war to maintain peace there is no knowing what will happen. In the metamorphosing magicians' chamber of Geneva he finds black becoming more important than white, and he himself pledged—if things reach this logical conclusion, which, happily, in politics they never do—to conscript Ireland to fight for English principles.

Lord Craigavon is agitated about this question of possible conscription. Ulster may run away from conscription into the Free State only to find that the Free State is conscripted to fight against the fathers of European civilization and against the countrymen of the Pope.

The position of any leader is dangerously insecure which depends on the gullibility of his public. An uneducated Ireland may be all the more an Irish Ireland, but it will be all the more liable to stampede and liable to revolution. It must be perfectly evident to our politicians that even when the men who rose in Easter Week and those who took part in the war against the Black and Tans have become ancestral heroes, the supply of political enthusiasm founded on negations of England will give out.

Way To Understanding

Already Mr. de Valera's good behaviour vis-a-vis Europe at Geneva is the most hopeful sign and the strongest argument I can find for Ireland remaining in the Commonwealth. It is necessary if we are not to fall into a backwater shut off from the world, to have the 61 nations who are associated with Great Britain keeping their eyes upon us like so many Skibbereen eagles. This "external association" is the only way by which we will be saved from parochial and uninspired introspection.

Naturally England is nearer than Geneva. A return of trade (unless the present policy of destruction of our trade is a political policy) should bring us to better understanding with our neighbour.

But while patriotism past and present in Ireland consists in enmity with England, only on commercial lines can there be friendlier feelings of give and take.

Strange to say, war, with our troops fighting side by side with those of Great Britain, would do more for an entente cordiale than decades of British toleration will. Only by war may the League of Nations succeed in bringing us peace! But this sounds as if Irish bulls, taxed out of England by sanctions, were lodged in Geneva!

ELECTRICALLY TEMPERED BLADES

THE PASSING HOUR

HOWEVER keen our appreciation of a quiet life and our agreement with old Horace that happiness is to be found in walking along the quiet path of life—the fallentia semita vitae—the path that eludes observation, there can be no doubt that the old love of content is as powerful as ever. So long as something has to be decided by pitting one man's brains or muscles against another's there is no need to bribe people to undergo tiresome struggle and manifold discomforts to get even a distant view of what is going on: they will pay for the privilege. At the moment there are two such contests rousing wide interest, and they could not be more different in every imaginable feature. There is the long struggle, which bids fair to be as much one of endurance as of skill, between the Chess Champion, Dr. Alekhine, and the young Dutch schoolmaster, Dr. Euwe, for the championship of the world, which will only involve the obligation of future struggles to retain the honour, and for even the greatest champion the income of an assistant accountant for a few years. Add to that a name inscribed on the rolls of history, if only chess history, and the lure still remains something of a mystery.

DR. ALEKHINE

IN Hong Kong we are of course interested through the personal contact with the present champion when he visited us two years ago. The blindfold chess exhibition which he gave was only what other "chess masters" have done, and is apparently no more than a special development of the particular mental faculty which makes a man a "master". It remains all the same a curious freak of the brain that deserves more study from our psychologists than it has had. No amount of determination or practice would enable most of us to remember the position of thirty-two games which we could not see, and to sit blindfolded and with back turned and call out the next move without letting our plans be distracted by noises and interruptions. Dr. Alekhine was good enough to be complimentary about the standard of our Hong Kong play, and he lost one game and drew two or three others, but as there was a convivial social gathering going on next door, with occasional songs and applause, he must have got a very poor idea of our consideration for visitors.

DR. EUWE

HIS opponent is another example of the mystery of chess—that it appears as a kind of "sport" in the scientific sense of the word, and that a man who has got it is bound to come to the front, no matter what the obstacles. For Dr. Euwe is a young schoolmaster with plenty of other work to do; who simply began to win all his matches against the best players. One of the games in this match lasted ten hours, and even the amateur who plays a friendly game in the evening can appreciate what that means. Asked how he had beaten Capablanca, Dr. Alekhine replied that all good chess was a matter of seeing ahead all the things that could happen, and that any good player should be able to anticipate at least all the possible positions, four moves ahead. The match at present is very level, and only a big sum in geometrical progression could give us an idea of all the possible positions that have been thought of and prevented by timely moves. The only other cerebral freak at all akin to music, which produces a prodigy every few years.

THE ANGLO-GERMAN FOOTBALL MATCH

IF chess is a gift of nature, football is at the other extreme, as a thing to be achieved by rigorous training and to be practised before cheering crowds that have reminded some students of the gladiatorial games. On the Continent of Europe it is extraordinary what a "wow" Association Football has been during the last few years, and the German team will be accompanied by all manner of official backers, and their form watched eagerly by the whole nation. On our side all the local dignitaries and the big

MINISTERING UNTO OTHERS

UNCONSCIOUS HUMAN HELPFULNESS

SPREADING HAPPINESS AND JOY ABOUT US

(By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan)

IT is one of the glories of human life that we, all of us, exercise unconscious ministrations. While we never dream that we are affecting anyone, we are touching and turning others all the time. We fret and others feel our fretting, though never a syllable has passed our lips. We play the game and, just because we play it, people of whom we have never heard play it better. Like the prisoners in their cell at Philippi who sang and were heard by the other prisoners, we may be singing because we know that God is with us, and will not leave us or forsake us, and prisoners in other cells may hear and take courage.

Simple Words And Acts

One of our writers, a man of genius, yet a man whose moral character was utterly vile, has told us how, when in the grip of shame, somebody took off his hat to him. It was only a custom of familiar courtesy—the instinctive act of a gentleman—yet to him it was a gleam of heaven in his hell. We never know what we are doing when we are doing it. Our tiniest actions are touched to finer issues. The very humblest life is full of beneficent unconscious ministrations. Words which we utter and then forget, a smile in passing, the clasp of a hand—have their work in God's strange world to do, and will meet us again in the dawn.

This unconscious human helpfulness is one of the chief ministries of happiness. Happiness is sometimes selfish, but it is also sometimes service. The man who resolves at all costs to be happy is generally a very miserable person. In this wide world the things we set our hearts on are rarely the things which we get. But when one is genuinely happy, with a heart at leisure from itself, then happiness is unconscious benediction.

The Power Of Goodness

One of Browning's most beautiful poems is a wonderful one that he calls "Pippa Passes." It noises of the athletic world are sure to be there. The play is sure to be strenuous, and it is to be hoped will be clean. The amount of bad blood that may be caused by a foul in such a game is enormous. Two years ago the British Ambassador at Buda-Pesth sent a semi-official letter to the Foreign Secretary complaining of the conduct of a British team who appear to have been under very loose discipline, and stated that it had distinctly made his work more difficult. Whether it was in any way connected with that tour I cannot say, but I met a Rugby man who said that he had had a two months' tour in Hungary. I asked him how he had enjoyed it, and he replied that he had been very hospitably treated, and had a jolly good time, "except that my knees got rather badly bitten sometimes in the scrums." That was in the early days, and would not happen now.

SANITARY BOARD MEETING

In addition the regular returns will be tabled.

is a story of murder and of guilt, portrayed with the passion and the truth of genius. And then below this house of villainies, where vows are treachery and kisses shame, in the exquisite summer evening Pippa passes. She is only an innocent girl, supremely happy and, because she is happy, as she goes she sings. She has no thought of doing good to anybody. She is quite oblivious of listeners. And yet that simple song of girlish happiness, entering the open window of the house, comes with the very ministry of heaven. Happiness will sometimes do what bitterest reproach will never do. To be happy when the shadows deepen and the cross is heavy is one of the finest of life's unconscious ministrations.

Another unconscious service is the sweet and unconscious helpfulness of childhood. Childhood never dreams that it is helping, yet its blessings are incalculable. It makes it easier to be good. How many a man has been true to what is pure through the constraining influence of a little child. How many a selfish heart has grown considerate when the mystery of motherhood has come. The pattering lips and feet which are never still except when they are sleeping, have done more to beautify and bless the world than all the legislation ever invented.

Unconscious Ministry

Their ministry is utterly unconscious. No child awakens in the morning and says, "To-day I am going to be a blessing." He is a blessing and he never knows it. He plays in the garden and Christ is gladdened. He sings, like Paul in the dungeon, and the prisoners hear.

The same unconscious ministry again is often a beautiful feature of a sick-room. Patient suffering may be finest service. It is told of Dr. Norman MacLeod that on one occasion he went to pay a visit to one of his flock. He found him dying, in dreadful destitution. Stooping over the bed he said: "My poor lad, I fear you're very weak." "Yes sir," was the reply, "I'm very weak, but I'm very strong in Him." The following Sunday the story was told from the pulpit. It was copied in religious newspapers in England and America, and presently letters came in from all sides, saying how that story had been blessed.

Here was a sufferer who would never serve again, but he sang in the dungeon and the other prisoners heard. One of the finest saints of God I ever met had been on her back for over twenty years with rheumatoid arthritis. She could only move her hands, yet the whole atmosphere of her little room was aglow with happiness, and to visit her was an inspiration. When the lights are low, and the silver chord is at the point of breaking, you may be serving better than you know. At least do not despair that your usefulness is over.

Living Not In Vain

This too is the value of genuine and unaffected goodness. A man may forget all his mother taught him; he will never forget all that his mother was. He may forget his father's counsel, but never his father's character. It is not the things we utter glibly—it is so often things which we have no power to utter—that fall on other lives with benediction.

When Sir Walter Scott was building Abbotsford, he put the bowling green in a peculiar place. At one corner he put a summer-house where he might sit in the evening. When asked why he built it there, he said it was to listen to his coachman Peter going through his evening worship. There are many who are constantly preaching (in the best sense of that word) who have never been in a pulpit in their lives and never know that they are doing anything.

So let us just be good and true; be patient; be undaunted. Leave

GUARD YOUR HEALTH DURING CHANGING SEASONS

BRIGHT Autumn sunshine—sudden changes—cool evenings make tricky times for normal health. With changing seasons many people find health a problem. And Autumn usually brings its crop of attacks in the form of colds and sore throats. For quick relief from colds 'ASPRO' has fulfilled all claims made for it, and if taken according to the directions it not only quickly ends a cold—it smashes further developments in the form of influenza, and prevents many days laying up in bed. If taken as a gargle according to the direction on the leaflet in the packet 'ASPRO' gives astonishing relief in a very short while. The reason why 'ASPRO' is so valuable for colds, sore throats, and many conditions of illness is because, after ingestion in the system, it is a powerful germicide, and is anti-pyretic—anti-periodic, and anti-fermentative. 'ASPRO' does not harm the heart, and its standard of purity conforms to the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession.

Dear Sir, I thank 'ASPRO' Tablets for warding off Indigestion from my wife, and also, as well as myself, when my wife, who was up to her eyes in Indigestion, was unable to take three or four tablets, while we were getting 'ASPRO' and making them.

My wife is a staunch advocate of 'ASPRO' now, and when I am feeling a bit off, I take a few 'ASPRO' and they do the trick.

Yours faithfully, (Rev.) L. WILLIAMS.

HONG KONG LADIES HOLD HOCKEY PRACTICE

The Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Club held an intra-Club practice match at Sookunpo yesterday, when Colours beat Whites by the odd goal in five, the latter being

C.B.A. LADIES BEAT "Y" IN CUP MATCH

Miss Bryson's Sparkling Performance

SPIRITED play by the C.B.A. Ladies, as contrasted with the comparatively lifeless exhibition given by the "Y" Ladies, resulted in the former winning their Caer Clark Cup encounter by the odd goal in five when they met at King's Park yesterday.

ST. ANDREW'S WIN BY FOUR GOALS

Recreio Ladies
Outclassed

MISS P. GITTENS SHINES

Superior combination and better stickwork were the factors that contributed to the success of the St. Andrew's Ladies, when they met and defeated the Recreio Ladies by 4 goals to nil in a Caer Clark Cup fixture on the Police Training School ground yesterday afternoon.

Miss M. Churn, although still suffering from the effects of the knock she received last Saturday, turned out for St. Andrew's, and played a sound game. Miss P. Gittens, their captain and centre-forward, was, however, their greatest asset on yesterday's show-ing. Mrs. Rose, their custodian, also played a very fine game. Miss P. Gittens scored twice before the interval and added another during the second half. Miss J. Wong was responsible for the fourth goal.

Recreio:—Miss Z. Barros; Miss C. Oamund and Miss E. Ribeiro; Miss L. Silva-Notto; Miss E. Xavier and Miss M. Alves; Miss C. Botelho; Miss A. Alves; Miss C. Alves; Miss E. Rozario and Miss B. Remedios.

St. Andrew's:—Mrs. Rose; Miss G. White and Miss J. Wong and Miss M. Churn; Miss F. Wong; Mrs. N. Lee; Miss P. Gittens; Miss J. Booker and Miss I. Gittens.

The winners certainly owed a lot to Miss M. Bryson, their pivot, for their victory yesterday, as she gave a sparkling performance throughout, attacking and defending with equal vigour. Miss I. Woolley, the right-half, also showed up very well. In the forward line Mrs. M. White and Miss M. Smith were outstanding, combining very effectively.

The "Y" were completely out of gear yesterday, their forwards having lost much of their dash and sparkle, including Miss O. Dalziel and Miss Fowler, while both backs were hitting too wildly. Miss J. Weller, who returned from Home last week, played in goal for the "Y," but was not an improvement on Miss George.

Mrs. White opened the score for the C.B.A. during the first half and Miss Smith added another shortly afterwards. After a scramble round the goalmouth Miss Adey succeeded in beating Miss Best with a well-timed scoop shot. Miss O. Dalziel equalised immediately afterwards, and Mrs. White netted the winning goal during the second half.

"Y" Ladies:—Miss J. Weller; Mrs. Read and Miss P. McCaw; Mrs. Brown, Miss E. Thomson and Mrs. Henry; Miss O. Dalziel, Miss S. Dalziel, Miss J. Adey, Miss A. Fowler and Miss M. Westcott.

C.B.A. Ladies:—Miss F. Best; Miss P. Woolley and Miss F. K. Walker; Miss I. Woolley, Miss H. Bryson and Miss P. Everest; Miss R. Blackmore; Miss M. Smith, Mrs. M. White, Miss D. Hunt and Miss E. Rousseau.

H.K.S.R.A. BEAT "Y" IN GAME OF 11 GOALS

In a friendly hockey match at King's Park yesterday the H.K.S.R.A. beat the Y.M.C.A. by 7 goals to 4. W. Brown netted three goals for the "Y" who secured the

MAMAK HOCKEY CHAMPIONS ON VIEW TO-DAY

MEET RUNNERS-UP IN "A" DIVISION

TWO JUNIOR GAMES
FEATURED

Probably one of the best hockey games in the "A" Division of the Mamak Hockey tournament will be played to-day, when the Kowloon Indians Tennis Club, the champions, meet the Royal Engineers, last season's runners-up. Both these teams were undefeated last year, though the Engineers were forced to share the spoils in more games than their opponents. As they have most of last year's players available, they should fully extend the Indians.

Two Junior Fixtures

Two games will be played in the "B" Division, and both should provide interesting hockey.

The newly-formed Nomads will encounter the Engineers, while the Central British Association will clash with the 12th Battery, Royal Artillery.

The following are some of the teams:—

"A" DIVISION

Engineers:—Dudley, Quantrell and Hunt; McGahan, Brown and Capt. Foley; Lieut. Hamilton, Woolgar, Collins Winkfield and Corner.

K.I.T.C.:—Ramzan; Karnail Singh (Captain) and Kishan Singh; J. Moronha, Tara Singh and J. Pereira; D. Noronha, A. Khan, Awtar Singh, J. Pintos and A. P. Souza.

"B" DIVISION

Nomads:—C. Soares; A. Eca Silva and F. G. Barros; A. Xavier; R. J. Reed and S. Souza; R. Silva; S. Reed, R. C. Reed, F. Reed and J. Francisco.

Reserve:—L. Souza.
Engineers:—Whitaker; Swanson and Piper; Ayo, Ray and Furt; McCaffery, Budden, Brown, Jordan and Revell.

The following are to-day's fixtures:—

"A" DIVISION

Radio v Argonauta (Caroline Hill, 3 p.m.)
K.I.T.C. v R. Engineers (Marina, 4.15 p.m.)

"B" DIVISION

Nomads v R. Engineers (Marina, 3 p.m.)
C.B.A. v 12th Bty. R. A. (C.B.A., King's Pk. 4 p.m.)

MAMAK HOCKEY CLASH TO-DAY

Argonauta and Radio
To Meet

A very interesting hockey game should be witnessed at Caroline Hill to-day when the Radio Sports Club will encounter a strong Argonauta side in the "A" division of the Mamak Hockey Tournament, starting at 3 p.m.

The Radio are fielding their best team. Gurbaachan Singh, who was to have played soccer for the Saints, will lead the forwards, while Man Singh will keep goal in place of U. B. Souza, who has not completely recovered from his recent injury.

The Argonauta are also making some changes, E. Alves coming in at back for A. Pinna, who is unavailable, and A. Angelo on the left-wing for P. Xavier, who is suffering from an ankle injury.

Radio:—Man Singh; A. E. P. Gueit and J. S. Groual; L. B. Kitchell, M. H. Hassan and Jagger Singh; Suran Singh, Samrat Singh, Gurbaachan Singh, Kalwant Singh and F. A. Kemp.

Argonauta:—N. Faria; A. A. Dos Remedios and E. Alves; A. Silva, J. Goncalves and T. Alves; F. Nolasco, B. Cosano, A. M. Xavier, A. S. Xavier and A. Angelo.

C.B.S. BEAT C.B.A.

Miss Martin Scores
Four Goals

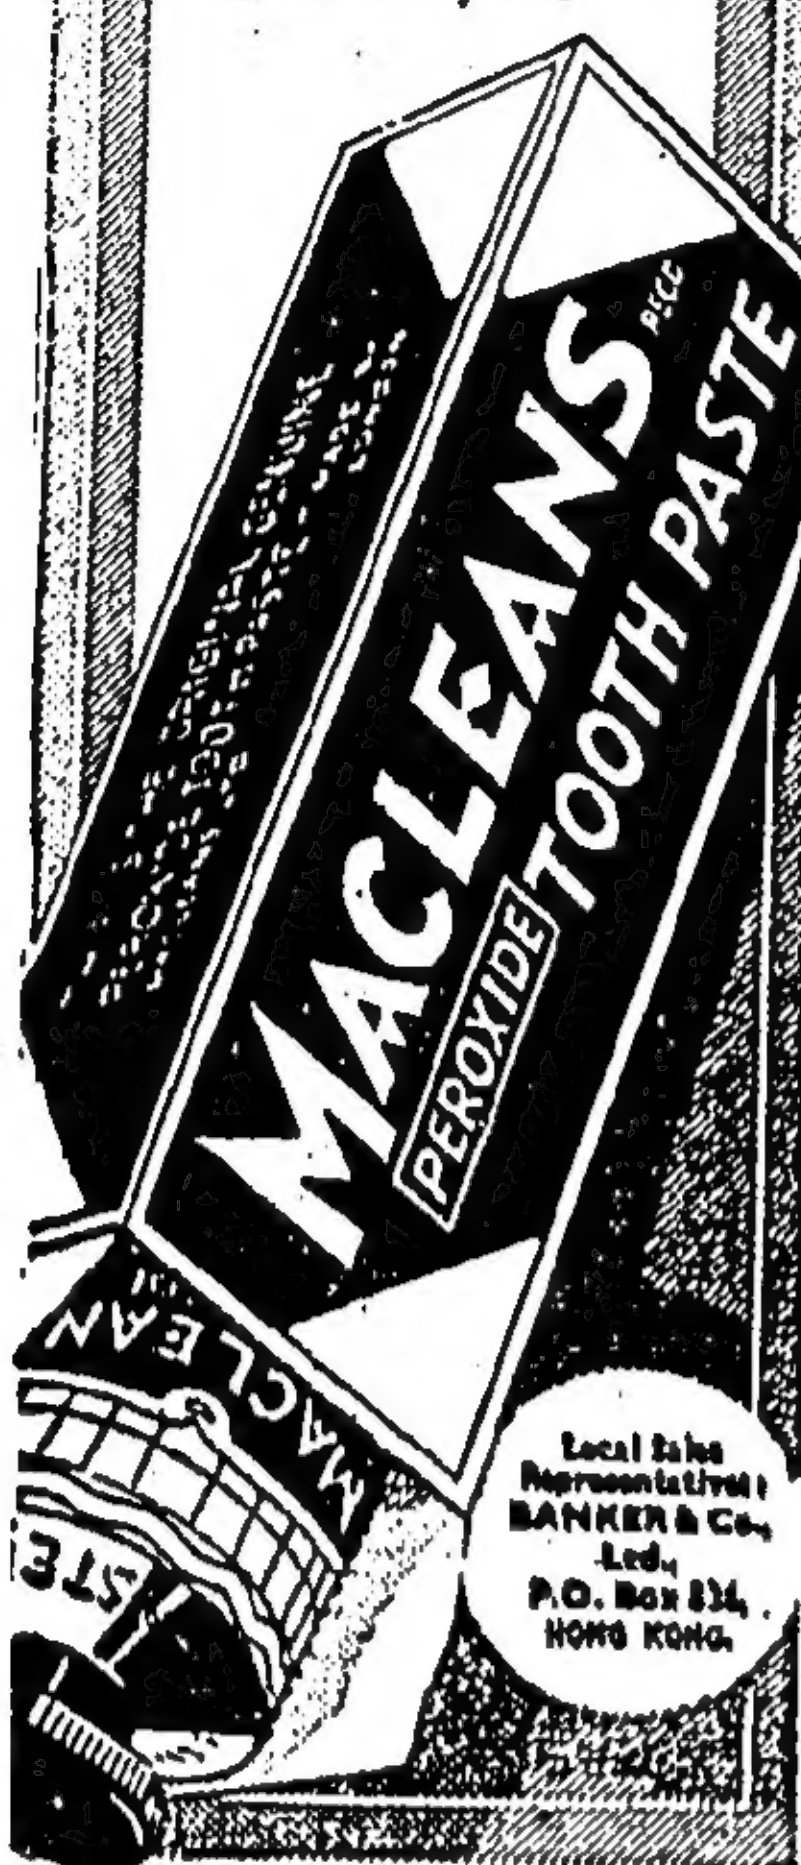

The Central British Schoolgirls removed any doubt concerning their superiority over the C.B.A. juniors when they defeated them by 7 goals to 1 in their Brann Cup encounter at King's Park yesterday afternoon.

Miss A. Martin was in fine form and netted four goals—two in each half. Miss M. Booker contributed two, while Miss J. Lakeman accounted for the other. Miss E. Woolley was the C.B.A.'s scorer.

other from a penalty bully. Alam Shan scored four for the H.K.S.R.A., while Tara Singh, Khuda Bux and N. K. Khuda Bux all scored one each. The score at half-time was 3 goals to 1 in favour of the ultimate winners.

HELENA MAY CONCERT

Outstanding Musical
ProgrammeCLASSICAL AND MODERN COMPOSERS INCLUDED

We musical people in Hong Kong have learned to look with a considerable amount of gratitude to the Helena May Institute for providing the facilities it does for the performance of good music. There now exists a tradition that here the audience can come with the pre-conceived idea of listening to the best music, and performers themselves can (or should) present items of the highest standard, which they might not find so acceptable on the ordinary concert platform.

Fortunately there is no dearth of good musicians and sincere artists in the Colony, and, in addition, there is also a large body of keen "appreciators" whose sympathetic encouragement makes performance possible.

Well-Known Artists

On December 5 at the Helena May Institute (5.30 p.m.), the third concert of the season will be shared by Mrs. Anderson Miller (soprano), and Lt. Col. C. H. Kuhne (pianoforte). As a pair, these artists are better known to wireless listeners, as, extending over a period of two years, Mrs. Anderson Miller has given a most interesting series of "Studies of Great Composers." With songs drawn from an extensive repertoire, she has taken Early English, Classical, Romantic, National and Contemporary Composers in turn. In this series, she has been artistically accompanied and supported by Lt. Col. C. H. Kuhne. The two will now give a joint recital in public, and have arranged a programme which will exemplify all these various styles. In building a programme of this description, it is naturally difficult to know what to leave out, as so much beautiful music claims admission. Considerable pains have, however, been taken to provide items grouped and contrasted as artistically as the short time will allow.

An Arne Setting

Mrs. Anderson Miller will begin the recital with a recent arrangement of one of Arne's songs, "O, Peace, thou fairest child of Heaven," and then will follow the beautiful aria from Bach's Cantata No. 152, "Stone beyond all jewels shining." Her second group will include Schumann's "Er, der Herrliche von Allen"—perhaps the greatest song he ever wrote—and Brahms's "Meine Liebe ist grün." French, German and Russian composers will be exemplified in the next group, by songs of Debussy, Marx Medner, etc. A group of representative modern and contemporary composers will follow, in which an item of interest will be Debussy's "Lullaby for a Modern Infant"—a piece composed for piano with wordless melody. The singer will conclude the programme with Frederick Austin's jolly arrangement of "The Twelve Days of Christmas."

Piano Solos

Besides undertaking the arduous task of accompanying this recital, Lt. Col. C. H. Kuhne, between the groups of songs, will contribute various pianoforte items. Bach, Schumann, Scriabine and other composers will be represented. He will also play two Intermezzi of Brahms and will conclude the first half of the programme with Beethoven's "Sonata quasi una Fantasia" (commonly known as the "Moonlight" Sonata).

Representing as it does, so many different schools of musical composition, the programme, it is hoped, will please all tastes, and receive well-merited support. It is learned with pleasure that Lady Southern O. B. E. has graciously expressed her intention of being present.—Contributed.

NEW LIGHT

on the Sleep Question

IT HAS now been demonstrated in an impartial and authoritative test that, of all food-drinks, Bourn-vita is unrivalled for digestive power.

The Revealing Result of a Remarkable Test

Here are authoritative figures showing the "digestive power" of Bourn-vita as compared with that of the other leading food-drinks. These figures are furnished by a famous Professor of Bio-chemistry who has conducted an independent research into this important subject in the bio-chemical laboratories of one of the largest British universities, submitting all the food-drinks in question to the standard "diastatic value" test. "Diastase" is the scientific name given to the natural digestive which is found in malt.

RESULT OF TEST (Lintner Value)

Diastatic power of BOURN-VITA 49.8
Diastatic power of Next Highest 29.0
(Diastatic power of the lowest 2.2; the average of the eight tested being 12.1).

HONG KONG, SUNDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1935.

The Hong Kong Airport

IN the course of years, partly by legal decisions and partly by experience, the world has succeeded in developing a code of maritime law which has given general satisfaction. But it has been a long process, and has been arrived at only by the abandonment of claims to special privileges, and the extension of equal rights to all ships. The foundation of the English maritime trade was no doubt due to the old navigation laws, which required that goods sent to England should be carried in English bottoms, and it is a fact that is usually forgotten that they were the creation of Oliver Cromwell, who, with the help of the great Admiral Blake, established at the same time the command of the sea by reforms of the Navy that were after the Restoration allowed to lapse by the negligence of the restored monarchy. Cromwell belonged to the well-to-do farmer class that lived by exporting wool to the Continent, where the weaving industry founded on that trade made the prosperity of many beautiful and prosperous towns like Bruges. Later on the Huguenots and other refugees brought the trade of manufacturing woollen cloth to England, and with it great additional wealth.

Transport is a business that employs more men in centres like London than any other single industry, and the laws that govern its economy are practically the same whether it be by road, rail, or air. The navigation of the "narrow seas" never got rid of controversy and conflict so long as the British ships demanded the observance of the old custom of "dipping the flag," and industry never came into its own until foreign ships were allowed to bring their cargoes into port on the same conditions as our own ships, however much that principle may have seemed to be giving away trade that might be paying dues to our own shipowners. For the hospitality led to reciprocal treatment of our ships in foreign ports, which could not be demanded except on a basis of equal rights, and cheap freights increased the opportunities of importing and exporting, as well as leading to a more or less steady market.

There remains the old argument about the nurture of "infant industries," which even in Adam Smith's view justified the grant of privileges until an industry had got itself fairly started. Air transport is perhaps still in that stage, for the improvements both of construction and knowledge of air conditions at present make expensive machines obsolete in a very short time. It will not be long before that stage is over, and different types will have become established as the best for particular purposes. There is very little doubt that in a few years all mail matter will go by air as a mere matter of routine, and that the passenger service will be vastly increased. A few accidents like the unfortunate loss of Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith create the impression that air travel is still unsafe, but the Imperial Airways statistics of miles flown and passengers carried are most reassuring to the nervous. Travel by air will become the rule for long distances, and what seems even now an experimental flight will be taken as a matter of course.

Only the records that show that men are unwilling to learn from the past make one hesitate to take for granted that the same principles that made shipping prosper until Customs barriers were aimed at its prosperity with only too deadly an aim will survive. Even the small nations will not be content to have no air-fleet at all, and there is no reason why they should be. The cost of subsidising transport in order to run competitors off the field is an unfair tax on the community, and only leads to retaliation. The ports used by the transport will only flourish by encouraging all comers through extending to them all equal treatment and moderate charges. To avoid constant bickering an international practice has to be developed, based on equality and reciprocity.

We might have much future ill-will and cut-throat competition if these principles could be recognised in respect of the air, and brought into action at once, and we have the League of Nations machinery at hand. That organisation should have begun with economic and trade questions, and gradually extended its scope. The useful activity of making a code for air travel and dromes and wireless direction is at present checked by the ambitious proposal of an international air force, which is Utopian.

Hong Kong Personalities

MR. S. H. DODWELL

This is the seventieth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyo, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Mr. Stanley Hudson Dodwell, Managing Director of the firm of Dodwell and Co., Ltd. Born at Oxford on May 27, 1878, Mr. Dodwell received his education partly in his native town and subsequently in France and Germany. In 1897 he joined the firm of Dodwell, Carilli and Co., London, which afterwards became Dodwell and Co., Ltd. Mr. Dodwell first came to Hong Kong in 1912, remaining here for some eight years. In 1920, he returned to London and was shortly afterwards appointed Managing Director of the firm.

Between 1920 and 1932 he made three trips to the Far East and round the world, inspecting the firm's branches in Ceylon, China, Japan, the Pacific coast of America and New York. Then, owing to the death in 1934 of the firm's manager in Hong Kong, Mr. J. P. Warren, he decided to stay in the Colony for a few years.

During his first spell in Hong Kong Mr. Dodwell was for two years a member of the Legislative Council and for one year Chairman of the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce.

At the present moment he is Chairman of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the Union Insurance Society of Canton, the Dairy Farm, Ice and Cold Storage Co. and the Hong Kong Brewers and Distillers, and a Director of several other local companies; also Vice-Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce.

In the field of sport Mr. Dodwell was at one time a keen cricketer, but afterwards gave it up, finding it rather too strenuous a game for him in a tropical climate, and has since devoted himself to golf as his principal recreation. He was one of the pioneers of the Fanning course of the Royal Hong Kong Golf Club. He has the unique distinction of having been three times captain of the Club. He has also three times been runner-up in the championship, but never succeeded in winning it. He was also a fairly useful tennis-player and recalls that he and Nesbitt were the first British pair to succumb to the local Chinese pair, Ng Sze-kwong and his partner, in 1918.

BEAUTIFUL FROCKS ON PARADE

CHARMING CREATIONS
AT FRIDAY'S BALL
YOUNGER SET RISES TO OCCASION

(By a Special Representative)

ALTHOUGH no particular trend was noticeable in the dresses worn by the women who thronged the Rose Room and Green Room at the Peninsula Hotel on Friday night, where St. Andrew's Ball—the most brilliant social function of the local season—was in progress, they had one thing in common at least; they were all very beautiful.

Similarly there was no predominating colour, as nearly every hue and every shade was exploited. In some frocks the latest American vogue—shorter, and low at the front—was discernable, but perhaps the most distinctive style of all was the skirt—the Parsee women's national dress—which was worn to advantage by at least half-a-dozen ladies I saw.

A striking contrast was achieved between the English and Chinese styles by the presence of Mrs. S. W. Tso and Mrs. M. K. Lo. The wife of the Chief of the St. Andrew's Society, Mrs. J. C. Macgown, wore white surmounted by a plaid of Clan Graham of Claverhouse tartan. Lady Southern looked charming in a flowing taffeta ensemble, of characteristic cut, while Lady Macgregor favoured black.

Lady Dreyer and Mrs. Sedgwick looked exceedingly attractive in beautiful gowns. Good Taste Hong Kong girls have nothing to learn from their sisters in other places, when it comes to the question of good taste in clothes. Each frock I saw had something distinctively attractive, and the majority of them, I know, were made and designed locally. Even if it serves no other purpose St. Andrew's Ball is an excellent advertisement for local dress-makers.

The younger set turned out in full force on Friday night and presented a glorious array of beautiful gowns of every cut and colour. There also appeared to be quite a few non-residents among them, probably from the Gofu, homeward bound.

Elsie Lammet chose navy taffeta with a white lace collar and Audrey Steel looked anything but "principal boyish" in white satin. Barbara Hanco had on a delightful gown of crimson velvet and appeared to be in the same party as her sister, Heather, who was wearing a flowered dress. Rosamund Hancock looked very sophisticated in suede crepe, while Constance Crapnell had on a very beautiful dress of a material which I have not seen on a local dance floor hitherto, and for which "spangled" flame seems to be the most descriptive term.

Ena Dunnett favoured dark green satin with a gold lame collar, while Beryl and Betty Fair wore green and red, respectively.

The "First Timers" "Girle" Glendinning looked lovely in white crepe and Cathie Ferguson chose blue suede. Mrs. Hills selected Marina blue.

Among the "first timers" were Mrs. Maclean and Mrs. Mackenzie Dow, the wives of the two new Union Church Ministers. Mrs. Maclean had on flowered nylon.

Among the others who caught the eye were Miss S. Jeffries, whose engagement was announced recently, Miss E. Thomson, Miss O. Dalsiel, Miss A. Fowler, Miss J. Beavis, Miss Isa Lammet, Miss Ann Evans, and another newcomer, Miss Joan Smith, Mrs. Sweeney, Mrs. H. H. Scott, Mrs. J. McKelvie, Mrs. E. J. Mitchell, who returned to the Colony during the week, Miss J. Dowling, Mrs. W. F. Murray, Mrs. N. Watson, Mrs. S. Thomson, Mrs. A. W. Ingram, Mrs. W. F. G. Harris, and Mrs. S. H. Garrod.

The Civilians beat the Royal Navy by 5 goals to 2 in the First Round of the Lai Wah Cup soccer competition. A. V. Gosano (4) and Sagelan, for the Civilians, and Cartwright and Stevenson, for the Navy, were the goal-scorers.

By beating the Royal Corps of Signals by 9 wickets in the Second Division of the Cricket League the Indian Recreation Club registered their sixth successive win of the season.

Stoker Percy Lake won the lightweight boxing championship of the Colony when he beat Seaman Dobson at the Theatre Royal after 15 rounds of clean and clever boxing.

A daring armed robbery in broad daylight occurred in the heart of the town when 10 men entered the Tung Yee-long seamen's boarding house in Queen's Road Central, held up the manager, rifled the safe and decamped with money and personal belongings to the value of over $1,000.

APB

Once daily the Beguines go through the ritual of the "Stations of the Cross," making the rounds of the fourteen pictures symbolical of the Saviour's passion and death.

Ghent, Belgium.

THE Convent of the Beguines in the town of St. Amundsberg, a few miles from this city, houses a thousand devout, self-sacrificing, hard-working nuns. These sisters of mercy lead the simplest of lives. They sleep in cell-like rooms and spend a good part of each day in prayer—but they have taken no vows forever marrying them to the Church; they can own property and, if they want to, they can return to the world and marry.

Among these thousand nuns there are women from almost every walk and station of life—peasants from farms and daughters of nobility who, for one reason or another, consecrated their lives to the service of their fellow men. Other convents of the order are established in Louvain, Bruges and Mechelen. Each of these convents is entirely independent of the other and is headed by a Mother Superior.

Few Withdraw

It might seem that the absence of vows would bring about a certain loss in membership, and that the nuns, being human, might sometimes change their minds and return to the world. But, despite the fact that they are free to do this, very few Beguines have left the convent once they took the veil.

The interesting history of the order goes back to the 12th century, when many women in the Netherlands banded together and devoted their lives to good works. Perhaps, because they were not bound to any Church, they did not think it necessary to take vows. Anyway it was a simple matter to join the order and just as simple to quit it.

In the early days of the Beguines the vowless nuns gathered in colonies on the outskirts of towns. They provided food for the hungry, medicine, and nursing for the ailing and shelter for the homeless. They worked in the fields, kept cattle, wove cloth. In many ways they served the people of the 12th century as the Red Cross serves people to-day.

But Take No Vows

Holy Wars

As time went on the Beguines formed larger communities. Sometimes two or more convents, each of them independent units, would merge and do their good deeds under the direction of one Mother Superior.

In the 16th century there was an outbreak of holy wars and, for some reason, the "Beguines," as the convents of the vowless nuns were called then, were looked upon as something spent at sewing. The work of the convent is divided among the members, some of whom prepare the meals for the entire community under the direction of a housekeeper, who is answerable to the Mother Superior.

Perhaps one of the strangest customs of the Beguines is the saying of prayers by lottery. On the walls about the convent there are small wooden boxes filled with cards bearing different numbers. Hung above the box is a framed list of different prayers, each one numbered. Every day each nun draws a card out of one of the lottery boxes and repeats whatever prayer corresponds to the number on the card.

On the raised dais in the living room of the Convent, the Mother Superior presides, while in absolute silence the "nuns" work at their sewing. Though they may leave and marry at any time, few of the women ever give up their religious life.

One of the Beguines of Ghent, who has passed her ninetieth birthday, but she is not yet too old to cease her daily labour of making fine lace.

to be put out of business. Many of them were destroyed and the women in them scattered, but a few managed to survive and it is from these few that the present institutions sprang, at least, by example and inspiration.

Life in a Beguine convent is not much different from the routine in convents in which the sisters are required to take sacred vows to stay in the service of the Church so long as they live. The nuns rise at an early hour, spend a certain time at their devotions before they eat their simple breakfast and begin the day's work.

Prayers By Lottery

As one of the pictures on this page shows, the Mother Superior is firm in her discipline, and she sits on a dais to maintain order and silence during the hours

Ladies' Night At The "Y"

THE first Ladies' Night at the Y.M.C.A., held on November 21, was an unqualified success, the dinner and the concert that followed being well up to the required standard. Two ladies who contributed in no small measure to the success of the concert made their first appearances at these popular functions.

Miss Prue Lewis, who delighted with several exquisite violin solos, appeared in a beautiful wine velvet evening gown, a most attractive feature of the dress being the very wide sleeves, while Mrs. Lewis, who accompanied her daughter, looked charming in black and white georgette. Mrs. Marsh, the other artiste, wore dainty flowered organdie, finished off with a frilly cape of the same material.

Mrs. A. W. Ingram's ensemble of powder blue lace was very chic, while Miss Ingram looked very sweet in pastel shaded nylon. Among the guests were Mrs. F. Short, who recently returned from Home, in a most attractive warm blue velvet. Miss C. Mitchell, whose engagement has just been announced, wore crepe-de-chine patterned in autumn tints, while Mrs. Mitchell looked becoming in pretty floured green.

Mrs. W. Murray and Mrs. A. McKenzie both looked charming in delightful georgettes, while Mrs. Powell appeared in a gay flowered material. Mrs. R. Morrison's rich brown lace was a decidedly reasonable contrast.

Mabel Carlyle Here To Stay

AN interesting new arrival to the Colony is Mabel B. Carlyle, who has come to manage Malsie's Gown Salon. She has just arrived from Manila, where she enjoyed a short stay, but she has lived in various parts of the Orient for a number of years now. Leaving America, she was connected with Liberty House in Honolulu and later worked on the China Press in Shanghai for some two and a half years.

Mabel Carlyle is very taken with Hong Kong. "I like it very much and I'm here to stay," she declares. Good resolution! Incidentally she is this week's new member of the Women's International Club.

Gift For St. Paul's G. S.

SOME happy news to relate. An American woman, Mrs. Reilly, was out here a little while back and was greatly interested in the school and all the work that Dr. Katie Woo was doing there. Going back to America she did not forget what she had seen. Now Mrs. Reilly, who was a wealthy woman, has just died, and it is found that she has left a substantial grant to the school. What is more, she has left her own library, which was a particularly fine one, to Dr. Katie Woo herself. Dr. Woo is of course very happy about it, and indeed we are all glad to hear that such great interest is taken by private people in her work.

Thanksgiving Day In Colony

ALTHOUGH there was no big celebration on the American Thanksgiving Day last Thursday, private parties were given in almost all the American homes and there was the traditional enjoyment of pumpkin pie and cranberry sauce! No bachelor is ever left alone on that evening, so all were happily occupied. Quite a section of our local American community spent this day on the water. The arrival of the President Grant, bringing them home on December 19, is much looked forward to.

Congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Sommers, who enjoyed their wedding anniversary on Thanksgiving Day!

MISS Katie Woo gave a small dinner party last Friday night which was very jolly and a great success. Her guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. Simon, Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Sommers, and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Woo.

hospitable and friendly manner with which he was received in Canton. He was especially touched by the courtesy shown to him by the Canton officials in placing at his disposal the special coach by which he travelled to Canton.

Dr. Trautmann has had a distinguished career as a diplomat and his Legation was the first to be raised to the rank of Embassy in China. Before the war he saw service in Russia, and after the war he was sometime Consul-General in Kobe, Japan. After spending seven years at the Berlin Foreign Office in the Department for East Asiatic Affairs, and later as Director of that Section, in 1931, he came to China. Dr. Trautmann is spending a few days here, and may find an opportunity to visit Fanling, as he is a keen golfer.

Mr. Friml's Short Visit

MR. Friml paid us a short visit this last week. He stayed some five days and left on Wednesday for Shanghai. He has just had a very interesting trip via Siberia to Czechoslovakia, visiting his old hometown, Prague. His stay in Shanghai will also be rather shorter than he would have liked as he has to be back in Los Angeles by the beginning of January. What he has to be back for is a big secret — but probably it has something to do with "Rose Marie," which is being made into a talkie.

Dr. Trautmann's Visit

THE German Ambassador to China, Dr. Oscar Trautmann, accompanied by Dr. H. Lautenschlager, Counsellor of the Embassy, arrived in town last Thursday on the Canton train. Mr. Gipperich, with members of the German community, was on the platform to receive him. This is the Ambassador's first visit to the South, to which he came on official business. He was delighted with the

Noel Coward

NOW that we have seen the great Noel Coward starring in a film of his own devising, what do we think of him as an actor? Let it be said at once that no film we have seen for a long time, if ever, differed so widely from the more or less stereotyped plot and representation that we have come to expect, and it is true that we have often expressed the wish for more variety. Noel Coward is, however, a serious actor, and we are justified in looking for an imagination and a technique to which we may apply serious standards. One of the audience sitting behind me remarked at an early stage, "this is not the sort of stuff for Hong Kong". That was no doubt true, for in Hong Kong most of the audience is not familiar enough with English to take the point of the "wise-cracks" in the first half of "The Scoundrel" in which he is a successful and only too attractive personality. But that is no reason why his wit should be made more difficult to follow by being delivered rapidly, without any attempt to apply the rules of elocution. It is quite possible to whisper so that a large audience can hear every word, if it is done with a proper use of the lips and intonation. In this part the star was deliberately acting the amateur because he thought it would be more telling than the professional style. But he was wrong.

The Barnstormer

THE reaction from the exaggeration of the old dramatic emphasis has been carried too far. It is quite beyond dispute that the pompous mouthing of words that marked the old hero of a melodrama who toured the country districts with what was called by the profession a "fit-up"—a stage that was taken to pieces after the performance—was highly absurd and rightly made the butt of satire. But he was himself a satire on the genuine artists of the old style, who recognised that a play reproduced by men and women was not just a slice of life imitated, but a selection from life underlined, like all good art, to show us something that we might have missed without that direction. The old Adelphi melodramas by Sims and Pettitt with William Terriss as hero would crowd any theatre to-day if they were dug up and revived.

Human Types

IN many of the less advertised films that appear at the smaller cinemas one sees occasionally a small part very effectively taken by a performer who has obviously been chosen for his physical characteristics or some peculiar mannerism. On the screen, in fact, he is just himself. One may laugh heartily, or be more affected than one would be by a performance that was notably "clever", but such a player is not really an actor at all, for he could not think himself into the skin of a part that was not suited to him all the time. Yet so confused and mercantile has become the general level of comment on the films that a man actually wrote a book last year to advocate that all the casting for films should be done by selecting "types" and not actors. Each player would then only play one part in the whole of his career, and he would soon become incapable of playing any other, or even of playing his own "type" with any freshness.

The Coward Ghost

SOMETHING akin to that was the mistake that Noel Coward made in this second part of the film, in which he is really a ghost of himself. One feels sure that he would repudiate the "type" theory with indignation, but neither ought he to adopt the theory of "reserve" by insisting on being just himself, when he is really dead. If one is romantic enough to imagine a plot based on an old superstition that a spirit cannot rest if no one has shed tears at his death, one should also go the whole hog and make a difference between the speech of a ghost and the speech of a living successful publisher. It could also be noticed that just now and then—as when he stood immovable at a window—he seemed to make a slight effort to do so, for no living publisher would stand like a statue when he was being spoken to by a friend. We would certainly like to see another Coward film, and many more, but with a hope that he would not scorn to act.—Commentator.

New Lady Tennis Player

THE most recent acquisition to local lawn tennis is Mrs. Dowling, wife of Major W. E. B. Dowling, 2nd-in-Command of the East Lancashire Regiment. A County player of no mean repute, Mrs. Dowling is at present considered to be among the first three lady players in the Colony.

Whitham On Holiday

AMONG the many prominent passengers who left the Colony for home last Friday week by the Scharnhorst, was James Whitham, the Colony Interport rugby full-back, who is spending a short holiday at home before returning to the Colony in August of next year.

Eric Ralston Back

AMONG the most recent arrivals in the Colony was Mr. Eric W. Ralston, the well known water-polo player and swimmer, who is traveling round the Far East on a business trip. He left for Shanghai on Wednesday last by the m.v. Chichibu Maru.

Donn Active On Leave

A. G. DONN, former captain of swimming at the European Y.M.C.A., has done quite a lot of swimming while on home leave. He represented the United Banks at water-polo and in swimming events.

Campbell Leaves Army

W. CAMPBELL, the former British Army and European Y.M.C.A. half-mile swimming champion, has now left the Army (South Wales Borderers) and is working at the Hotel Metropole, Swansea, while Sutherland, who was a member of the Borderers' and Y.M.C.A. junior water-polo team, now has his own business in South Wales, where he is doing very well.

"V.J." In Hospital

FORMER members of the Singapore Swimming Club will be very sorry to hear that "V.J." (Vaughan-Jones) is now in hospital, although making splendid progress. Titlists Defending Crown

L. GOLDMAN and Miss R. Hancock, holders of the Colony Mixed Doubles Lawn Tennis Championship, will defend their title this year. The event is again being held under the auspices of the Chinese Recreation Club.

L. Goldman and Miss R. Hancock will encounter very strong opposition this year from Willie Hung and Mrs. Wilson, of the K.C.C., who are partnering one another this season for the first time.

Gonsalves Under Doctor's Orders

J. GONSALVES, one of the Recreation's most promising football players, has been medically advised to refrain from football for the remainder of the season. Gonsalves played several games for the senior team on the right wing, and at half-back.

Marathon "Hat Trick"?

J. SMITH, who has won the annual local marathon race two years in succession, hopes to win it again next year and is already undergoing strict training. The race will be held in January.

Besides being a very capable runner, as his numerous trophies show, he is also a keen hockey player, playing for both the Y.M.C.A. and the C.B.A.

Society Interporters

THE St. Andrew's bowls team, which beat St. George's a week yesterday, included three interporters, namely Fraser, Holland and McKelvie, as against one in the English team—B. W. Bradbury.

Incidentally two veteran bowlers made a re-appearance in that game. They were R. C. Wallace and N. Drummond of Taikeo. Wallace had played one game during the season, but this was the first time that Drummond had played in a match this year. Wallace was skip with Drummond as his No. 3 and their rink finished 20 shots up—the biggest victory of the whole match.

Ismail's Long Innings

S. A. ISMAIL, the Indian Recreation Club wicket-keeper, has played regularly for their 1st XI since the Club was founded in 1919. He was a slow bowler in those days and only took up wicket-keeping in 1924, the year in which the Club was desperately short of a stumper.

Ralston's Rugby Days

J. RALSTON, of the Education Department, was one of the best rugby football players in the Colony in his younger days. Prior to coming out to Hong Kong to take up his appointment with the Education Department, Ralston was given a trial for Scotland on more than one occasion.

C.R.C. And Cricket

IT is a pity that the Chinese Recreation Club have given up cricket. In the old days they boasted a very useful all-round team. Ng Sze-kwong, the former tennis champion, Un How-fan, the Choa brothers and H. Ching were then the mainstays of their XI and they were always looked upon as one of the most sporting teams that took part in the League.

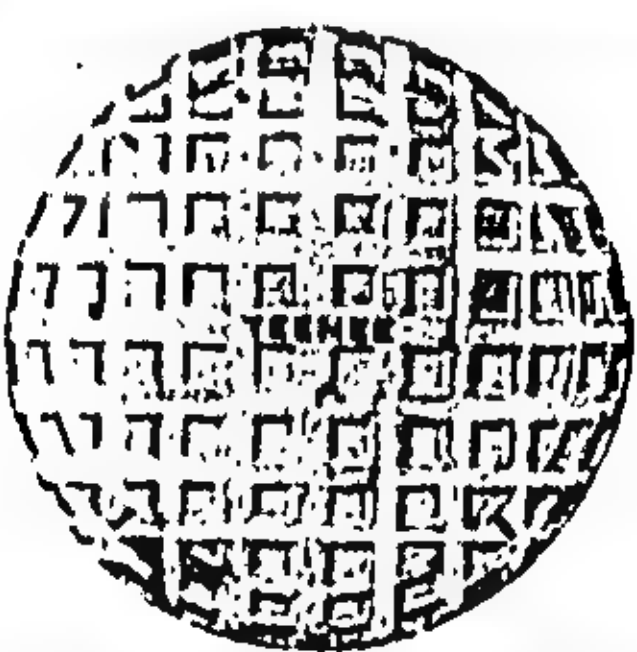

Budding's Furlough
ANOTHER bowler who will be missed from the K.B.G.C. next March is J. H. Budding, one of the most talented players in the Bowling Green's senior team last season.

A. W. Meley, also of the K.B.G.C., is leaving for home in the spring.

SPORT PERSONALITIES, II.

NG Sze-kwong, lawn tennis champion of the Colony from 1918 to 1923, has also represented China at the Far Eastern Olympic Games (at tennis) on four occasions, 1917, 1919, 1921 and 1923. He also held the singles title of the Chinese Recreation Club for many years and has served as President of the Club since 1924. His activities are not only confined to tennis, for he was billiards champion of the Chinese Club as well as the C.R.C., while at ping-pong he also beat "all comers" at the latter Club. He was elected captain of the Chinese Davis Cup team which met Australia in America in 1924, but he declined to make the trip for business reasons. When the C.R.C. had a team in the Cricket League, Ng Sze-kwong was their mainstay. He invariably opened their innings and used to knock up some big scores, his pair of chocolate-coloured pads being a familiar sight in those days. He was also a very useful slow bowler, and was regarded as a very safe slips fielder.

BRITAIN'S EXAMPLE TO BE FOLLOWED?

DEVALUATION APPEAL IN FRANCE

"GENERAL STABILITY OF PRICES MERELY A MYTH"

Paris, Yesterday.

The Government's majority on the finance issue was larger than was anticipated, and it is now expected that the Government will win through the Fascist League debate next week. During last night's debate the Finance Minister, M. Regnier, said that the flight of gold had been a catastrophe since November 4. He therefore asked for a massive vote to enable him to take measures against speculators and newspapers running campaigns to bring them to the threshold of panic and crisis.

The motion, on which the vote was taken, proposed by the Left, Centre and Radical Deputies, reads: "The Chamber, observing the temporary character of the economy decrees, expresses confidence in the Government to pursue the defence of the franc, and calls upon the Government to apply immediately allocations in favour of small civil servants, rentiers and ex-servicemen."

M. Laval made a quiet and dignified appeal. He referred to the example of England. When she was faced with the same difficulties she resorted to the same methods. He thanked the Radicals for their support. The vote was then taken.

Mr. Laval is trying to surmount another difficult hurdle, following Thursday's success. Numerous speakers in the Chamber yesterday criticised his financial policy. It was expected that the Premier would demand a second vote of confidence late last night, and was anticipated to obtain a smaller majority than Thursday's.

Critics contrasted the British and French policies to the detriment of the latter.

One of the most important utterances was delivered in the afternoon by M. Paul Reynaud, the Right leader and former Finance Minister. He strongly appealed for devaluation and declared that France's loss of gold could not continue much longer.

Devaluation, however, should be carried out at a time of calm, not of crisis. Britain and the United States practically overcame the depression through devaluation, while France was dragging herself through a slough of misery, with unemployment rising.

BLIND SUPPORTERS

The crisis was now at its worst in the countries which had failed to solve the problem of the high cost of living. He declared that if England in 1931 by means of sacrifices had not maintained the pound sterling, despite the collapse of world prices, it would have meant an indescribable catastrophe for the whole world. The supporters of orthodox finance were really blind. They could not see that England had rendered a great service in abandoning the gold standard.

"The general stability of prices" was a myth which Mr. Neville Chamberlain recently exploded, and the rising of world prices was another myth, which meant additional losses to France, when it could include her imported raw materials.—Reuter.

ITALIAN PRESS COMMENT

Rome: M. Laval's victory in the Chamber on Thursday is given very favourable comment by the Italian press, which emphasises the French Premier's great services to his country and to the improvement of inter-State relations.

The Popolo di Roma expresses the view that M. Laval has set himself an exalted mission, namely, a rapprochement with Germany. If he should succeed it would be the greatest diplomatic event of post-war times. The power in Europe would then slip from the grasp of England.

The Messaggero declares that M. Laval has undertaken the task of maintaining peace in times of extreme difficulty, and expresses the hope that it will be possible, after Thursday's victory, to discard inter-party jealousy and intrigue and allow the Government greater freedom of movement.

UNEMPLOYMENT

Paris: The number of unemployed drawing relief throughout France increased by 6,768 to 404,000 during the week ended November 23, this being an increase of 34,400 by comparison with the figure at the same time last year.—Trans-Ocean Service.

PROSPECTS IN AMERICA

COUNTRY TO-DAY IS SOLVENT

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT OPTIMISTIC

New York, Yesterday. The Government has 3,125,000 unemployed on work relief jobs, declared President Roosevelt at a mass meeting at Atlanta yesterday. The remaining 375,000 of the 3,500,000 whom it is proposed to employ are under orders to report for work, and many are ready to start.

He declared that there had been a tremendous increase in morale through substituting work for the dole. The dole outraged every instinct of independence.

Expressing optimism regarding the coming year, the President said in the light of the continuing economic improvement: "We have passed the peak of the appropriations. Revenues, without the imposition of new taxes, are increasing. We can look forward to a decreasing deficit."

He claimed that the credit of the Government was higher than that of any other great nation. "We were insolvent," he said. "To-day we are solvent."

DIRECT DOLE ABOLISHED—Washington: The complete liquidation of the Federal emergency relief administration has been announced by Mr. Harry Hopkins, the administrator. The termination of the direct dole for unemployed is regarded as a distinct triumph for the Government.

Over $3,000,000,000 has been spent in Federal relief since May 1933. Officials decline to comment on the possibility that further sums may be necessary for the 4,000,000 men who cannot be employed, for whom the Government has declared that the local authorities are responsible.

It is learned that certain States in which there are many unemployed men have been allotted sufficient cash to continue the dole for the time being.—Reuter.

RUTHLESS WAR ON RATS

Campaign Opened in Berlin

ALL HOUSE-OWNERS MUST PARTICIPATE

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL Berlin, Yesterday. A ruthless war on rats all over Berlin begins this morning at 8 o'clock and will continue unrelentingly until Tuesday night at 9 o'clock, at the order and under the supervision of the Chief of Police.

All house-owners are under the obligation to take part as part of their civil duty, partly because of the role played by rodents in spreading disease and partly because of the amount of destruction caused each year to public property.

Poison must be laid in such a way that other domestic animals, dogs, cats and poultry will not be victimised, and when the campaign is over the dead rats must be cleared away. Suitable poison is obtainable from the police stations.

Anybody not responding to the appeal of the Chief of Police is liable to a penalty.—Trans-Ocean Service.

PRAYING WOMEN ARE BLOWN TO PIECES

ETHIOPIAN GOVERNMENT COMMUNIQUE

GENEVA WILL DISCUSS OIL EMBARGO ON DECEMBER 12

Addis Ababa, Yesterday.

Only a few houses remain standing in Dagga-hbur, following constant bombardment by an Italian squadron, according to an Ethiopian Government communique. About 1,500 bombs fell in the town, including many of the incendiary type, which left buildings in a sheet of flame. The experienced troops escaped, as they were the quickest in running to cover immediately the attacking bombers were sighted.

A number of women praying in the temporary church erected to take the place of the one destroyed in a previous air raid were blown to pieces by a veritable hail of bombs.—Reuter.

Geneva: The Committee of Eighteen will meet on December 12 to consider the imposition of an oil embargo on Italy.

Italy's reaction to the proposed oil embargo is not likely to influence the Powers concerned. There is a strong feeling that the Committee of Eighteen should be convened early next week in order to emphasise that the League has decided not to trifle with the question. However, as M. Laval is unable to visit Geneva next week, it is necessary to postpone the meeting until the following week.—Reuter.

Asmara, To-day.

Marshal Badoglio's first official action was to order the disarmament of the entire population of the occupied territory. This measure is being carried out with the greatest rigour, since recently Italian troops have very frequently been attacked in the rear.

Abyssinian deserters are also required to hand over their unlicensed firearms, in exchange for which they receive brand new Italian rifles. Their chiefs must answer with their heads if these are ever used by their followers against Italians.

MUNITION DUMPS DESTROYED

Rome: The 58th war bulletin reports that the columns are continuing their operations on the First Army Corps front in Danakil. On the Eritrean Army Corps front the advance section at the Abato Pass dispersed armed Abyssinian sections. On the Second Army Corps front a mixed column in the Maigetta territory came across army groups, which were put to flight, a number of prisoners being taken. On the Somali front aircraft bombed the Abyssinian positions at Dagga-hbur, destroying various munition dumps.

ITALIAN HOSPITAL SHIPS

Rome: Five large passenger steamers, with a total of 4,000 berths, have been equipped by the Italian Government for medical and Red Cross services with the Italian expeditionary force in East Africa, and three other vessels, with a total of 3,000 berths, are in preparation, making 7,000 beds in all. The cabins are provided with automatic air-conditioning. These eight steamers will be used for the transport of the sick and wounded, and the remainder will be used as quarantine ships for soldiers and workmen stricken with contagious diseases, to remain in the port of Massawa.—Trans-Ocean Service.

GOLD COLLECTIONS

Rome: The Italian bishops are the most active participants in the gold collections organised as a defensive measure against sanctions, according to press reports, which state that the Italian church dignitaries are enthusiastically supporting the national aims and have given a ready response to the Archbishop of Monreale's suggestion that the churches, monasteries and places of pilgrimage should hand over to the Government all gold treasures presented them by worshippers and pilgrims, receiving in return 5 per cent. war loan.

TUNNEL TO AIRPORT

The Canadian Parliament has approved a $1,000,000 tunnel to be built from downtown Toronto to the new airport on the island in Toronto bay.

This suggestion, it is said, has already been carried out in numerous cases, and the patriotic attitude of the clergy has made a deep impression on the population, to whom the papers uphold it as a shining example.

YEAR'S LEASE

The Italian churches in Italy possess enormous riches in gold, and the papers estimate that if all these are turned over to the State and each inhabitant in addition contributes only a little more than two grammes of gold, the Bank of Italy's gold reserves will be increased by a milliard lire, which would put Italy in the position to hold out against sanctions for a further year.

Moreover the paper point out that the church possesses large credits abroad, in exchange for which the Government would be able to offer Italian industrial shares.—Trans-Ocean Service.

FRANCE'S CLEAR STAND

London: The recent assurances given to Britain as to the attitude that would be assumed by the French Government in the event of conflict being provoked by Italy in consequence of the application of sanctions by the Covenant-enforcing Powers were, according to press reports from Paris, repeated to Signor Corruiti on Thursday during an interview between Laval and the Italian Ambassador.

It is stated that the French Prime Minister made it clear that the French Government stands by its pledge to continue in full co-operation with the other Powers in fulfilling the obligations of the Covenant, and further, that any attack on Britain or other League State engaged in carrying out such obligations would be interpreted by France as an attack on all the League States, which France would join in resisting.

It is felt that the removal of any misunderstanding which may still have lingered in some quarters regarding the attitude of France in such an eventuality should conduce to an improvement of the situation and contribute to the hastening early re-establishment of peace in East Africa. The joint efforts of the French and British Governments to find a possible basis for settlement are continuing.—British Wireless Service.

LAVAL'S REQUEST GRANTED—London: Signor Vasconcellos, Chairman of the League Committee of Eighteen, has summoned the committee to meet at Geneva on December 12.

Signor Vasconcellos desired to fix the meeting for the 5th, but the French Prime Minister, M. Laval, who wishes to attend in person, made the urgent request to him to delay the meeting for one week, by which time he hopes that the internal political situation in France will enable him to leave Paris again.—British Wireless Service.

SORDID CASE OF SHOOTING

SON WOUNDED BY MOTHER

INCIDENT AT DRINKING PARTY

Santa Barbara, Cal., Yesterday.

The police accuse Mrs. Livermore of shooting her son. The Under Sheriff says that both mother and son had been drinking and, according to a guest who witnessed the incident, the former told her son that she would sooner see him dead than drinking to excess.

The boy then went to a cupboard and got a rifle and handed it to his mother, saying: "Well, here you are." The mother fired and the bullet entered his chest.

Mrs. Livermore was divorced from her husband in 1932. Later she re-married him and was again divorced from him in 1934.

It is feared that the boy's wounds will prove fatal.—Reuter.

An earlier message stated that Jesse Livermore Jr., aged 15, the son of the famous Wall Street business man Jesse Livermore, had been taken to hospital at Los Angeles, critically wounded in the head and back. The police stated that the shooting occurred at the mansion of Mrs. Dorothy Livermore, living apart from her husband. She had been taken to hospital in an hysterical condition.

CO-OPERATIVE STORE

Goods At 15 And 30 Cents

Business in the Colony seems to be improving.

Another 15 and 30 cents store, under the name of the Co-Operative System Stores, has been started in D'Agallur Street, just opposite the Albion 10 cent store.

There will be no excuse for people to say that they cannot afford to buy goods other than of Japanese manufacture because of their cheapness, as this newly opened store sells exclusively goods of American and British origin.

According to the management of this store, it is intended in the future to establish a chain of such co-operative system stores in the Colony.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

WEEKLY REPORT ISSUED

APPLICATION OF SANCTIONS BY MEMBER STATES

Geneva, Yesterday. The Governments are continuing to send to the Secretariat documents relating to legislative or administrative measures taken by them in application of Article XVI Section I.

Senhor Vasconcellos, Chairman of the Co-ordination Committee, in accordance with the instructions of the Committee summoned a small group of experts to help him in supervising the execution of the Co-ordination Committee's proposals. This group includes representatives of Belgium, the United Kingdom, France, Greece, The Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Spain, Sweden, Turkey, The U.S.S.R. and Yugoslavia. It met on November 27 and began a methodical examination of the information received from the Governments on the enforcement measures taken against Italy in conformity with the above Article.

This examination concerns the question whether the legislative or administrative measures correspond to the various proposals, and whether the enforcement covers all the territories under the control of the States members of the League, including their colonies, protectorates, leased territories and mandated territories. The work is now in progress.

Petrol Embargo

The Chairman of the Co-ordination Committee had also intended to summon the Committee of Eighteen, which is, inter alia, to consider whether the moment has arrived to apply an embargo on petrol and its derivatives, cast iron, steel and coal for Italy. As is known, the Co-ordination Committee has already declared itself favourable to an embargo on these products, but decided to suspend enforcement until the embargo is likely to be effective.

The Committee of Eighteen was summoned for November 29, but on the request of the French Prime Minister, who wished to attend personally and could not be at Geneva, the date fixed for the meeting was adjourned for some days. Senhor Vasconcellos, in consultation with the Committee, decided to convene the Committee of Eighteen on December 12, a date which will permit all the members to come to Geneva.

Films For Children

Following the request of the Child Welfare Committee, approved by the Council, the League Secretary-General has sent a questionnaire to the Governments members in order to obtain the completest possible information on recreation films and special cinema performances for children.

Licence Systems

The Secretariat of the League issued a report on the working of the import certificate and export licence system recommended by the advisory committee on the Opium and Dangerous Drug Traffic in conformity with the conventions now in force regarding the traffic. This document contains suggestions and recommendations as to the working of the system.

Council Membership

A committee on the question of the composition of the Council of the League was to meet on November 25 but was postponed, by request of several members of the committee. — British Wireless Service.

ORGANISED PROCESSION IN LONDON?

London, Yesterday. In a letter to the Trades Union Council regarding the visit of about 10,000 German football enthusiasts to London next week to watch the international match between Britain and Germany, on the Tottenham ground at White Hart Lane, the Home Secretary, Sir John Simon, says he welcomes the Council's recent approach to him on the subject, as enabling him to state that "Wednesday's match has no political significance whatever. It is a game of football which nobody need attend unless he wishes, and I hope that all who take an interest in it from any side will do their utmost to discourage the idea that a sporting fixture in this country has any political implications."

The Trades Union Council have replied, accepting the offer of the Home Secretary to receive a deputation on Monday, and pointing out that any concern they expressed was aroused not by the match, but by suggestions of an organised procession of the visitors to the ground. — British Wireless Service.

POLICY IN GERMANY

HITLER WILL NOT CAPITULATE

Berlin, Yesterday. In a speech at the Deutschlandhalle, Herr Hitler firmly rejected the "bourgeois counsels" to a more moderate middle course. Difficult problems, he said, still lay ahead, but he was determined not to capitulate.

"Our opponents contemplate gaining power if we collapse, but we are determined not to succumb. We have taken steps to ensure that if some of us cease to exist others will take their place."

The Nazis would regulate the problem of raw materials, though that would be easier if the world was not mad. — Reuter.

POSTPONEMENT OF NAVAL CONFERENCE

London, Yesterday. — The opening meeting of the Naval Conference at the Foreign Office, at which the Prime Minister will speak, has been fixed for 10.30 a.m. on Monday, December 9.

The postponement from Saturday next has had to be made owing to delays experienced by the United States delegation in reaching London. — British Wireless Service.

KOWLOON JUNIOR SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT

The Kowloon Junior School is giving an entertainment at St. Andrew's Hall on Thursday, December 19, at 5.30 p.m., for which invitations have been issued. CHINESE ART EXHIBITION

Amazing Success
In London

NUMBER OF FOREIGNERS
ASTONISHING

British Textile World
Keenly Interested

London, Yesterday.

The Duke and Duchess of Kent will accompany Their Majesties the King and Queen to the Chinese Art Exhibition tomorrow, when they will be shown round by Mr. Quo Tai-chi, Chinese Ambassador in London. Other royalties will also be in the party.

There is every indication that the Exhibition will be an unprecedented success. Thursday was the first public day, and there were over 3,000 visitors, 1,000 more than visited the British Art Exhibition. This is believed to be a record.

Yesterday, despite the 5s. entrance fee, the galleries were crowded. Turnstile keepers, asked how the attendance compared with that at bygone exhibitions, said: "Extraordinarily good; seldom anything like it."

Pretty Chinese Girls

The stalls in the entrance hall, where two pretty Chinese girls in lovely red silk Chinese dresses are assisting, are driving a brisk trade in photographs of the exhibits.

The number of foreigners is astonishing. The language of every country in Europe is overheard. Nearly 40 recognised specialists in Chinese art, four from Germany alone, have arrived, specially sent by the newspapers of most of the European countries to write up the exhibition. A leading firm of Paris dressmakers is bringing out a long series of new costumes incorporating the Chinese influence. Enquiries from literary, cultural and commercial institutions throughout the Continent regarding cheap travel and entrance facilities are pouring into Burlington House daily.

Textile World Interested

The British textile world is keenly interested. The President and entire council of the Bradford Chamber of Commerce are arranging a visit to the Exhibition, as the result of a report from their experts, specially sent to it.

Sir Percival David yesterday inaugurated a series of lectures arranged by the Royal Society adjoining Burlington House during the course of the Exhibition. The Crown Prince of Sweden presided. The demand for tickets is three times the capacity of the hall. Already every seat for the hall for the whole series is sold out.

A noticeable tendency of visitors is to concentrate in one gallery, indicating their intention to make further visits. The most popular room yesterday appeared to be that housing the Shangyin Chou bronzes. Many exclamations of admiration of their beautiful shapes and rich chasing were overheard. — Reuter.

Miss Wanderwell Praises The Hong Kong Girls

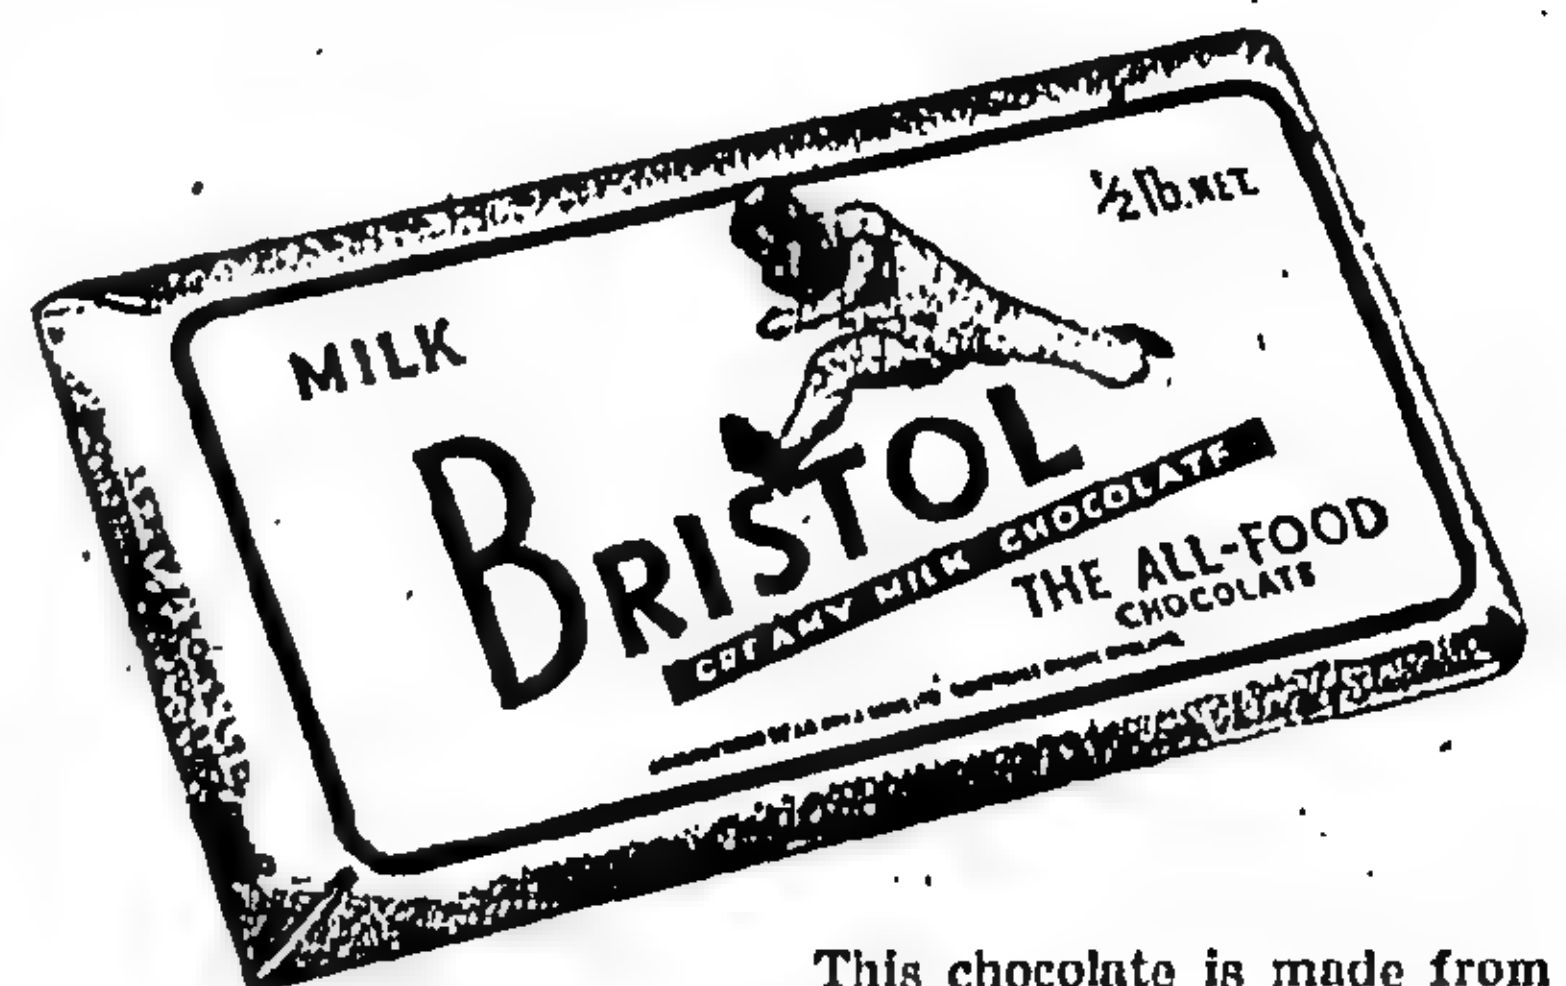

Miss Aloha Wanderwell, the famous world-traveller, who is revisiting Hong Kong after an absence of twelve years, gave some of her impressions of the city as it is to-day to a representative of the Sunday Herald.

What struck her most, she said, apart from the many alterations and improvements in the streets and buildings, was the remarkable change in the appearance and the ways of the Chinese women, especially the younger ones, which she considered was all to the good. She was full of admiration for modern Miss Hong Kong, whom she described as one of the most exquisitely fascinating types of women that she had ever seen. She was charmed, too, with the modern Chinese dress and commented upon the good taste of most of the girls and their ability to choose the materials most suited to their style.

Miss Wanderwell also mentioned that her original Ford car, in which she had made journeys of many thousands of miles in Africa and South America, now has an honoured place in the famous Ford Museum.

CORRESPONDENCE

CONCERNING ART CRITIC'S REPLY TO "A.N.M."

HOW MUCH ART IS IN THE ART CLUB?

[To The Editor, "Sunday Herald"]

Sir,—“Art to-day is a terrible problem to an absolutely sincere, honest and yet ambitious mind.” How true that statement is, only those can fully appreciate who themselves are struggling with that problem—genuine and sincere artists who are fired to give the world something it has never yet received, and “have not bowed the knee to Mammon,” but are sacrificing everything for the pure and painful joy of creation. Those men, lovers of art, who have watched keenly, sympathetically and with understanding the struggle with the “terrible problem” know only a thousandth part of what passes in an artist's soul. So what do the other men know, who are neither sympathetic nor understanding—not even watching?

If we open the pages of a history of art, even the superficial student can learn one thing: that each new advance has been accompanied by a storm of abuse against the man who tried to upset long-standing traditions. The least thing he is accused of is ignorance of his art. That has been said of Michel Angelo, Rembrandt, Cezanne, and practically all great men. The reason is that the great artist is almost invariably a rebel finding existing conventions hindering the full expression of his emotions. Naturally to casual contemporaries his work is unintelligible. They can only comprehend traditional art, because it puts little strain on their faculties.

I have been reprimanded by A. N. M. for failing to “enjoy” the Art Club's annual show. He thinks that I have not gone there in the right frame of mind. I went there, my dear A. N. M., in a critical frame of mind, and that is the only way to enjoy things. The critical mind immediately rejects all rubbish, retains only that which is really enjoyable. That there was so little to enjoy is truly not my fault.

To be elated before the insignificant does not show a capacity for joy, nor yet the right frame of mind—but simply bad taste. That we cannot see things with the same eye is only natural. I am one of those who are struggling with the “terrible problem,” and I don't know that you are even sympathetic. Your casual manner shows little understanding. In fact your article is an affront to the intelligence of anyone who knows something of the subject. Or did you write it in the expectation that only the members of the Art Club would read it?

You attribute to me two statements which I never made. Re Luis Chan, I never said, or even meant, that he should be sent abroad to learn how to paint as a foreigner. Just to learn to paint. If he has a genuine talent, as I believe he has, when he comes back he will not paint as a Frenchman, but his own background will break through. You think that all he needs is a little wider experience that he can easily get from anyone in Hong Kong. Well, excuse me—but that is sheer ignorance. The experience one needs is not a little wider one, but a very wide one; and one does not get it easily. No, one gets it with one's life-blood.

I tried to call the attention of anyone interested to Luis Chan in the hope that he would be given a chance. And behind my advice there is the wide experience of the artist and the art teacher. Is it not presumptuous that you, who cannot know anything of the subject of art training, should try to interfere with the chance which I tried to bring in this young man's way?

And now Leo Byng. Please read again what I said about him, and you will discover what I meant. There is no reference in my article to his name. I don't care what his name is. But if he is Chinese, I think he ought to paint as a Chinese (not necessarily in the traditional manner), and not as an English, French or German painter. The rest of your musings show the same lack of understanding; in fact the last paragraph shows ignorance of the facts. Art dealers do exploit artists, living or dead, even speculate in them; but they never made one. Corot and especially Van Gogh will always remain a page in the history of art, art-dealers or no art-dealers.

But there is one malicious and academic sentence in that last paragraph which is rather daring from the pen of a layman. “The insidious discouragement of the highbrow attitude to amateur art is a psychological disease.” Now, my dear A. N. M., the grouping is all wrong. Not “highbrow” and amateur art, but “real art” and dabbling! And where the psychological disease comes in, according to an American, is that “Women used to be prostrated, now they take up sculpture.” We are talking of the Art Club, so why drag in art? And Whistler, Corot, Van Gogh? I bet you that at least 75 per cent. of the Art Club members are wondering whether Van Gogh is the name of a French wine or an Italian cheese!

Now let me tell you why the artist's attitude to dilettantism is what it is. The experience in against the former expectations: the encouragement of dilettantism does not increase the number of real art-lovers. On the contrary, most dilettantes, as soon as they are able to draw a cat so that it resembles a cat, become tremendously self-important. The experience is that such people hardly ever buy a picture; they are very satisfied to cover the walls of their houses with their own. If you don't believe it, just take a look round. And in the rare cases when they do buy a picture, they show as a rule less judgment than other intellects. They are too busy painting to acquire judgment.

Let me tell you about one more thing: my own attitude toward the local Art Club. I don't care who is dabbling or what medium he or she is dabbling in—quietly at home. After all, it is less annoying to the neighbours than a saxophone. But it is a different thing to hold a public exhibition, call themselves an “Art” Club, and—here is where your Mammon comes in—put a price on the results of those afternoons when there is no bridge party.

I have often heard people exclaim against the mediocre performance in a local concert; or see the correspondence in the papers when there is a poor amateur broadcasting programme. Why should I be more lenient with the Art Club just because the average man's eye is less trained and less accustomed to discover a false note than his ear?

“Art to-day is a terrible problem,” my dear A. N. M. One should not touch it with fumbling hands.

VIXEN TOR LEFT AT START BUT EASILY BEATS BOBNIK STAR

GLADIATOR'S FINE WIN OVER KING'S WARDEN

TWO DEAD-HEATS IN SPRINT EVENT

BOOTLE WINS EWO HANDICAP

VIXEN TOR'S sensational win over Bobnik Star after being left at the start, Gladiator's success over King's Warden by a comfortable margin and a thrilling finish to the Comrie Handicap, which resulted in two dead-heats, provided the main features of the Thirteenth Extra Race Meeting, which was held in perfect weather at the Valley yesterday.

A softish track following Friday's rain caused one or two upsets, Harvest View paying $83 for a win, Tillicum $41.10, Vixen Tor $77.60 and Soldier of China $83.60. The "double" combination of Gladiator and Mersey or Gladiator and Emergency Call paid $79.80.

Mr. Leo Frost, the newly crowned 1935 champion jockey, carried off the riding honours with a win, a second and a third in six starts, while the Lan Stable proved triumphant with a win, a second and a third.

Only a very small crowd was present for the Ewo Handicap, despite the fact that the sun was shining brightly and there were no threatening clouds visible.

Mr. C. F. Chiu's Bootle (Mr. C. V. Eckford) won the annual handicap "classic" when, starting with an advantage of 150 yards, the biggest in the field of ten starters, he beat Lion Hunter (Mr. G. Hill, the never player) by 3 lengths, Mersey (Mr. E. O. Gaubert) was only a head behind Lion Hunter for second place after a thrilling neck and neck struggle up the straight, while The Chetah was fourth.

Mr. Gardner fell off Wisdom Stag 50 yards from the post, and Mr. Nicholls came off Silver Fox at almost the same moment. Fortunately both were uninjured.

Bootle's win paid $61.20 as the result of The Chetah's failure to overcome a concession of 150 yards.

Harvest View Surprises
Mr. Lan's Harvest View caused an upset in the Crief Handicap, for which there were eight acceptances, leading all the way round to win comfortably in the slow time of 2:15.3. Monoplane came through with a fine finishing burst to secure second place, while Bistre looked as if he would have won but for the fact that he found himself blocked some 150 yards from the post. He finished strongly ahead of Pride of Tsingtao, the favourite, Harvest View's win paid $83.00.

Tillicum's Easy Win
Another upset was witnessed in the Comrie Handicap when Mr. Butler signalled his return to the track after a brief absence by riding Tillicum to an easy win over Copper Idol. Philanderer, the favourite, was only a neck behind Copper Idol, but disappointed badly after being favourably placed at the start. Double Chance was fourth, while Festival Eve, a well favoured entry, finished nowhere after a bad start.

Favourite Wins
The Dunbar stable lost possession of the St. Andrew's Stakes when Mistle Bay, despite a big-headed effort, failed to give Ribble, a hot favourite, and The Tiger 11 lbs. over 1 1/2 miles. Leaving his effort until the home straight, Mr. Paul Botelho brought Ribble home with a terrific rush, the rest of the field being left standing.

There was a dead-heat first and second.

Hotman, who was striding out nicely at the head of the field until the home stretch, finished a poor fourth under his heavy weight impost.

King's Warden was pulled up just before entering the home stretch on the first round owing to a broken stirrup leather.

King's Warden Beaten
As fine a piece of riding as could be seen was witnessed in the Glasgow Handicap when the "cinch" of the day, King's Warden, bowed to Gladiator by a margin of 1 1/2 lengths in a field of four runners.

HOW JOCKEYS FARED
The following was how the jockeys fared yesterday:

There was a dead-heat first and second.

King's Justice set a fast pace, with Cyclamen Bay on his tail, but King's Warden, a hot favourite, and Gladiator remained two lengths behind until past the Rock, where Mr. Frost snatched a two-length lead over King's Warden before Mr. Roza had realised what had happened. Entering the straight on the rails, Gladiator stayed off the Dynasty candidate's determined challenge and came home a popular winner.

Cyclamen Bay was third, just ahead of King's Justice.

Vixen Tor's Fine Effort
The biggest surprise of the afternoon occurred in the Coogee Handicap when Vixen Tor (Mr. Ralph), after being left badly at the start, won by three-quarters of a length from Bobnik Star, the favourite, in one second outside the latter's track record. The E. S. K. crack at one time held a lead of 10 lengths!

Atlas, after being first out of the gate, filled the minor position, while Saucy Face was fourth.

Two Dead-Heats
The Comrie Handicap was the most striking example of good handicapping at yesterday's meeting when Emergency Call (rails), Mersey, Solar Star and The Rain Gauge all appeared to pass the post at the same time. The judges, after a slight delay, however, declared a dead-heat between the first two mentioned and a dead-heat for second place between the last two! Mersey owed his first win to Mr.

ALTERNATIVE DOUBLE PAYS $79.80

"Daily Double" Statistics

The following were yesterday's "daily double" figures:

1st Leg: Cyclamen Bay (75), Gladiator (460), King's Justice (70) and King's Warden (810).

Deitz's determination over the last 10 yards.

Solar Star led into the straight, but lacked a good enough finish, while The Rain Gauge, on the other hand, finished full of running.

His First Win

PRAYER AND GIFT DAY

All-Day Vigil At St. Andrew's

An unprecedented event in the long history of St. Andrew's Church took place yesterday, when a Prayer and Gift Day was held.

From early in the morning until 7.30 last night, the Rev. J. R. Higgins, Vicar of St. Andrew's, kept a vigil in the church, while throughout the day members of the church prayed continuously, making changes every 15 minutes.

In the past it has been the custom to hold a Fete on or about St. Andrew's Day, in order to collect funds, and what took place yesterday was in the nature of an experiment. It is likely that it will be held every year instead of the Fete.

Whatever is collected—and, although the final figures were not available up to the time of going to press, there was a good response—will go to pay for certain repairs works that have to be carried out to the Church and the Vicarage.

At Divine Service to day all the gifts received yesterday will be offered and the amount received announced.

SOUTH CHINA "B" RECREIO OUTPLAY

Both backs defended soundly, with good understanding, and Pau Ka-ping, although not called upon to any great extent, was ever alert and correctly positioned.

The Recreio kicked off, and set up a long, but scrambling attack with no shots, until Gomes decided to have a try when poor-y positioned. His weak effort was easily cleared by Pau.

Ho Ka-keung gave Lai Shui-wing a possible scoring chance, but the inside-right's shot travelled high over the bar.

Gomes' Weak Effort

The Recreio had by far the best of the first half exchanges, but their close-passing methods down the centre proved futile against the closely packed South China goal.

Towards the end of the first half, the Recreio altered their play by giving the wingers a chance, with the result that the Chinese defence was drawn away from the goal, and it was then that they should have obtained a substantial lead. As it was, Pau saved very easily from Castilho, while shots by Bertie Gosano, Gomes and C. Marques went yards wide of the target. The best shot so far, was from Delgado, a drive from 20 yards which missed the upright by inches.

The second half was but a repetition of the first. Few exciting incidents occurred, unless the fact that the referee wisely brought the players together and warned them against wild tackling and other incidents of bad temper, can be called exciting.

A well placed corner-kick by Yeung Shui-yick looked dangerous for the Recreio, but "A.V." headed out well. Henry Young quickly returned the ball, however, and a desperate scramble took place in the Recreio goalmouth before V. Marques managed to hook the ball away and clear.

At the other end, Gomes drew the defence well over to the left with a clever run through, and then swung the ball hard over to the right, leaving C. Marques with a splendid scoring position, but he skied the ball high over the bar with a hasty kick!

The best move of the game came when Young pushed the ball forward to Ho, who immediately slipped it between Beltrao and V. Marques to the unmarked Yeung Shui-yick. The latter cut in at a tremendous pace, and his shot on the run flashed inches wide of the post—a swift raid that looked a goal all over.

A shot by Bertie Gosano struck the base of the upright, and the game ended with still no score, but the honours of a poor game in the Recreio's favour.

S. China "B"—Pau Ka-ping; Leung Yee-chun and Lee Kam; Yau Wa-hing; Lim Tak-po and H. Young; Yeung Shui-yick, Lai Shui-wing, Ho Ka-keung, Cheuk Shuk-kam and Leo Shek-yau.

Recreio—R. Marques; A. V. Gosano and Bowen; Delgado, Beltrao and V. Marques; C. Marques, Castilho, B. Gosano, Gomes and Alves.

although the final figures were not available up to the time of going to press, there was a good response—will go to pay for certain repairs works that have to be carried out to the Church and the Vicarage.

At Divine Service to day all the gifts received yesterday will be offered and the amount received announced.

CONSULAR MEETING

Japanese Officials Confer

SCHEMES FOR BUSINESS EXPANSION DISCUSSED

A private meeting of all the Japanese Consuls and Consuls-General in the South of China was held at the residence of Mr. M. Mizusawa, the Consul-General for Japan in Hong Kong, in Conduit Road yesterday afternoon.

According to the Secretary of the Japanese Consulate, the meeting was held under instructions received from the Foreign Office at Tokyo. Newspaper reporters were not allowed to attend the meeting, but on being questioned afterwards Mr. Mizusawa stated that nothing but business expansion schemes and passport problems were discussed. Mr. Mizusawa will leave for Canton either to-morrow or the day after.

The most important official attending the meeting was Mr. Sakamoto, Chief of the Foreign Office Section in Formosa. The others were Mr. Mizusawa, Consul-General in Hong Kong, Mr. Kawai, Consul-General at Canton, Mr. Nakamura, Consul-General at Fochow, Mr. Harada, Consul at Swatow and Mr. Yamada, Consul at Amoy.

Considerable Interest In Canton

DOMINATION OF FINANCIAL MARKETS?

(From Our Own Correspondent)

The Hong Kong meeting of Japanese Consuls from Canton, Swatow, Amoy and Fochow and high Japanese officials from Formosa, which was held to-day, raises considerable interest here. Although the official reason is that the meeting is but an unofficial exchange of views among Japanese Consuls and colonial officials in Formosa, it is understood that the gathering will evolve a plan to extend Japanese trade and political activities in South China.

Hong Kong is a depot for Japanese goods, which are shipped from there to all parts of South China. Customs returns in Canton show that the volume of Japanese imports is steadily increasing.

Certain Asian aliens are buying Canton silver coins at high rates. This effort is believed here to be an attempt to dominate the financial markets in Canton and South China.

THE AMBULANCE DANCE

Very Enjoyable Function

The informal dance given by the St. John Ambulance Brigade and Association at their Headquarters, Tai Hang, last night, proved an unqualified success, the large number of people attending unanimously voting it a "jolly good show."

During the evening bridge and mah jong were played while Miss Elvise Yuen, of Radio fame, delighted with a song, Miss Ethel Banker making a very sympathetic accompanist. The Chinese Sword Dance given by the Misses Wong Fung-lau and Loo Hon-fan was also very well received.

Dancing took place in the spacious hall of the Headquarters to the strains of some excellent music supplied by the Blue Rhythm Orchestra, and among those present were Mr. Alfred Morris, Director of the Brigade, Dr. and Mrs. W. B. A. Moore, Dr. and Mrs. R. A. D. Forrest, Mr. and Mrs. J. Keston, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Rumbold, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Paul, Dr. and Mrs. Dovey, Engr. Comdr. and Mrs. H. J. White, Dr. Ma Luk and party, Mr. F. H. Kwok and party, Mr. William C. Lowe, Miss L. Wong Ying, Dr. G. I. Shaw, Mr. A. el Arcull, Capt. Dallas, Dr. T. W. Ware and many others.

The following were the prize winners:

Contract Bridge—Mrs. Ralston and Mr. Ferrin.

This picture was NOT taken at St. Andrew's Ball, but only shows some of the guests at a hilarious party in Hollywood, held to celebrate the coming-of-age of Jackie Coogan, and incidentally, his acquisition of the $1,000,000 fortune built up for him by his earnings as a minor. The comic Scotsman on the right is Bert Wheeler, Woolsey's alter ego, clearly showing his Turkish proclivities. The one holding the hat is Maxie Rosenbloom, former light heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH CONCERT

Charming Singing By All-Chinese Choir

EXCELLENT PROGRAMME

A most interesting and enjoyable concert was given last night at St. Paul's Church, all the performers, with the exception of Mr. Lindsay Lafford, at the organ, being Chinese. To one who had hitherto heard nothing but the harsh, nasal, tuneless Chinese "operating" singing, which is torture to a sensitive European ear, the wonderful purity and sweetness of the girls' voices came as a delightful surprise. The men's voices were not on the same plane, lacking depth and fullness, but they were as true on the notes as those of their sister singers.

Mrs. E. L. Lum is the possessor of a sweet, pure, soprano, with greater power and volume in the upper than the lower register, which was heard to advantage in her solo "Come Unto Me." Mr. O. Y. Lyen, an excellent of marked ability, gave three well-rendered violin solos, the third being the charming "Berceuse" of Rudolf Friml.

Of Mr. Lindsay Lafford's organ contributions there is no need to speak, except to mention appreciatively his rendering of two dainty morceaux by Wolstenholme, "The Question" and "The Answer."

One very delightful item given by the choir was an old Chinese air, a "Farewell Song" harmonised in the Western scale. The choirmaster and conductor, Mr. Andrew Chan, is to be heartily congratulated on the choir's performance.

The following was the programme:

Organ Solo: Mr. L. A. Lafford
"First Sonata" (Mendelssohn)

The Choir:
(a) "Wilt Thou Not Visit Me" H. M. Butler

(b) "Christ Being Raised From The Dead" W. H. Gill

Violin Solo: Mr. O. Y. Lyen
"Sonata in E" (Handel)

Male Quartette:
"In Heavenly Love Abiding"

The Choir:
(Chinese Tune)

Organ Solo: Mr. L. A. Lafford
"The Question" (W. Wolstenholme)

The Choir:
"Rejoice In The Lord" (Finley Lyen)

The Choir:
"I will lift up mine eyes" (J. C. Whitfield)

Organ Solo: Mr. L. A. Lafford
"The Answer" (W. Wolstenholme)

Vocal Solo: Mrs. B. Lum
"Come Unto Me" (W. Coenen)

Violin Solo: Mr. O. Y. Lyen
(a) "Melodie" (Gluck-Kretzer)

(b) "Berceuse" (Rudolf Friml)

The Choir:
(a) Come, And Let Us Return" (W. Jackson)

(b) "How Beautiful Upon The Mountains" (R. A. Smith)

Organ Solo: Mr. L. A. Lafford
"Prelude and Fugue in B Minor" (Bach)

CRAIGENGOWER WHIST DRIVE

The fortnightly whist drive and tombola held at the Craigengower Cricket Club last night was well attended. The whist prizes for the ladies were won by Mrs. Bear, Mrs. Ramsey and Mrs. Jones, while the gentlemen's prizes were won by Mr. Hall and Mr. Arnold.

THIRTEEN CLUB MEN HOLD ARMY AT THE VALLEY

Butcher's Best Game In Colony

DEANE AND MCGILCHRIST INJURED

Packing 3-2-1 and playing with only 13 men in the second half, the Club beat the Army after a terrific struggle by three goals and a try (18 points) to two goals and a try (13 points) in their friendly rugby match at the Valley yesterday.

There were many hard knocks taken by both sides, but the civilians suffered the most and just before the interval Deane left the field for good with a badly wrenched foot, McGilchrist following him with a sprained ankle soon after the commencement of the second half.

With Peers filling in the gap in the threequarter line and Deane away, the remaining six Club forwards were given a very strenuous time against the Army pack, but emerged triumphant, although the healing was by no means as good as before.

Army Backs Well Marked

With Davies away, however, the Army backs, especially their right-wing comprising Rice-Evans and Jones, were not as good as usual, their opposite numbers tackling much too well for their liking.

Hutchinson and Floyd, however, were a very dangerous pair, the former's clever side-step and the latter's swerve giving the Club defence many anxious moments.

Good Fly-Half

Evans made an ideal stand-off half and was off the mark like a bullet, very often sending his threequarters away before the civilians got to know what it was all about.

Robertson was not as good as usual in defence, but McGilchrist made a welcome return by scoring two good tries. Fielden, on the other wing, was not having everything his own way, but both centres, Powell and Scott, were hard-workers.

Superb Handling

Butcher played his best game to date, his handling being superb throughout, while he scored a magnificent try. Walkden, Deane and Peers were the pick of the pack.

Floyd opened the scoring for the Army for Gillespie to add the points, but McGilchrist gathered a long pass from Powell soon after to ground wide of the posts, Robertson adding the points with a grand kick to bring the scores level. Just before the interval McGilchrist added his second try, but Robertson failed with the kick. Deane was injured at this stage and left the field.

In the second half the Club went further ahead through Scott, who cleverly intercepted a pass to ground near the posts, Robertson converting. Soon after, Butcher broke clean through the Army defence from a scrum on the 25-yard line and converted his own effort.

In running for the ball McGilchrist twisted his ankle and left the field for good.

From this stage the Army held the upper hand and Ap-Rhys-Phyche broke through from a 5-yard scrum for Gillespie to add the goal points. Soon after Carter scored the Army's third try, but Gillespie's kick failed. No side was given soon after.

Mr. D. W. MacEwen refereed and the teams were:

Club—L. G. Robertson (Captain); H. R. McGilchrist, A. M. W. Scott, C. J. Powell and L. J. A. Fielder; J. L. Bonnar and A. H. R. Butcher; W. E. Peers, G. S. Chambers, F. J. McGilchrist, E. P. Humphreys, A. F. Walkden, B. O'M. Deane, J. H. McElroy and M. S. Cunningham.

Army—Fus. Barry (Fullback); Fus. Floyd (Fullback), L/Bdr. Hutchinson (Fullback), Lt. Rice-Evans (Capt.) (Fullback) and L/Cpl. Jones (Fullback); Dmr. Evans (East Lancs.) and Spr. Carter (R.E.); Capt. Ap-Rhys-Phyche (Fullback); Lt. H. L. E. Hobart (R.A.), Gnr. Hall (R.A.) and L/Cpl. Harris (East Lancs.) and Fus. Morgan (Fullback); Spr. Cullinan (R.E.), Gnr. Wright (R.A.) and Capt. Gillespie (R.E.).

The programme was remarkably well-balanced, and some of the most talented artists in the Colony took part.

The proceedings opened with a part song, "He That Hath A Pleasant Face", rendered by the members of the Hong Kong Chinese Choral Society, who were conducted by Mr. Anderson Miller. This was followed by a solo by Mr. W. J. Phelps, and then Mr. John Braga gave a splendid violin interpretation of "Melody" and "Chanson Hindou."

New Minister

That popular entertainer, the Rev. Cyril Brown, whose repertoire is so extensive as to suggest either a very retentive memory or a remarkable turn of native wit, was one of the highlights of the programme. His oblique references to the arrival of the new minister of the Church (the Rev. J. Maclean), succeeded in "catching" the audience immediately, and bursts of spontaneous mirth continued until the curtain fell.

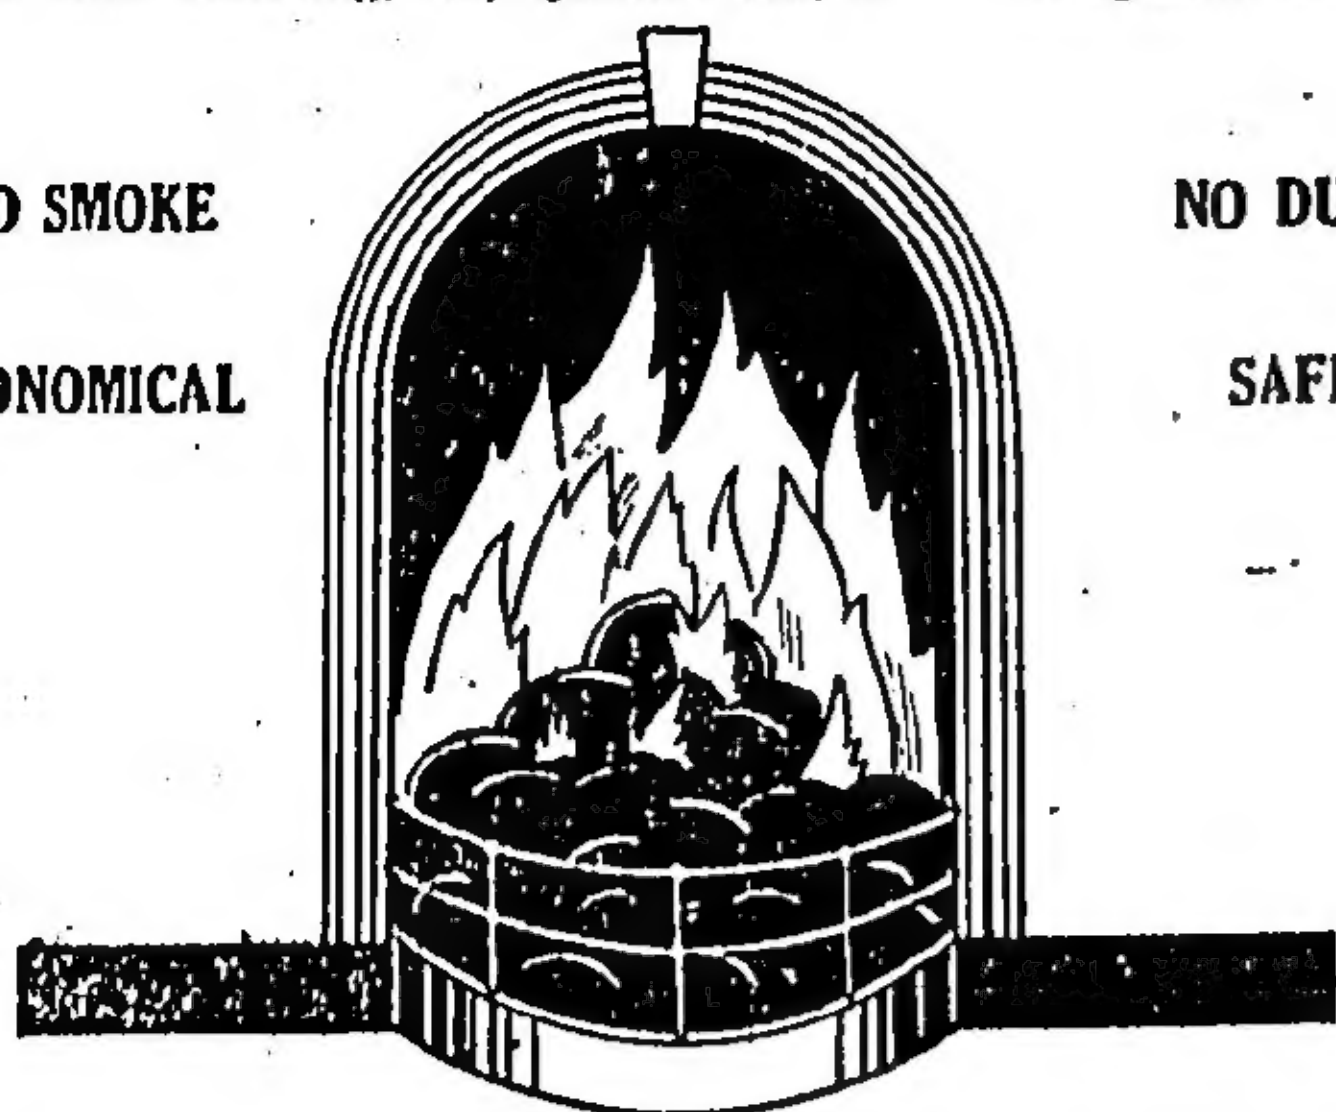

Captain O. F. Joyce, the possessor of a very clear and true baritone voice, and whose appearances are all too infrequent in local concerts, sang "Sea Fever" with excellent expression. (Mrs. Anderson Miller, sang two solos beautifully, while Mr. S. McNeill's humorous Lancashire monologues absolutely "brought down the house.")

"All concerned are to be congratulated on their efforts.

FABULOUS ANIMALS OF CHINATHE UNICORN, SYMBOL OF BENEVOLENCE*HEAVENLY DONOR OF WISE AND VIRTUOUS CHILDREN

(By PHYLLIS JUBY)

THE Unicorn appears at those happy times when sages are born. It is said that when Confucius was about to be born a unicorn appeared to his mother. The wondrous animal knelt before her and placed at her feet a slip of jade, on which was the inscription: "The son of the essence of water shall succeed to the withering Chow and be a throneless king." The mother then tied a piece of embroidered ribbon around its horn and the animal disappeared.

So it was that during his life Confucius was called "The Elf of the Unicorn." The legend goes on to say that before his death a strange and mysterious animal was caught by a hunting party. Only Confucius knew it to be a Unicorn, and when he saw that on its horn was the piece of ribbon his mother had attached to it he was much affected and cried out: "The course of my doctrine is run."

Confucian Legends

As the Unicorn is so closely connected with Confucius, whose ambition was to form a plan of perfect government, the creature is often taken as the symbol of this idea. There is a saying, "The Unicorn has but one horn, so the world should have but one ruler." According to another legend Confucius had the habit of dreaming that he wandered in a strange land. Once in his dream he saw a wonderful red light with rays that reached to the very clouds. Amazed, he called his disciples and drove to the place where he had seen the light. There he found a village through which a child was riding on a limping unicorn. Moved to pity at the sight of the animal, Confucius descended to examine its wounded foot and to his surprise saw in its mouth a book which the animal presented to him. In this Confucius read that a great Emperor possessing the virtue of five would rule the nation after the Chow dynasty. Later generations regarded this as foretelling the coming of the great rulers of the Han dynasty.

Giver Of Sons

Since the Unicorn appears in times of peace and prosperity and portends the birth of sages, the Chinese believe that they must worship it in order to obtain wise and virtuous children. A favourite marriage gift is a picture of a unicorn bestowing a child on parents and bearing the inscription: "The Unicorn that grants children." Such a gift is always a good omen and is received with much pleasure. The newly-married woman hangs this picture in her room or on the door of her apartment, hoping thereby to give birth to sons. The goddesses to whom women pray for children too are often represented riding on a Unicorn and bearing a child in their arms.

There is an old custom of placing the picture of a boy riding a unicorn in front of the bridal sedan when the bride is brought to the home of the bridegroom. And at the Feast of Lanterns a kind of lantern representing a boy riding a unicorn is frequently given by a Chinese to his friend, the significance being that he wishes his friend may have a very bright son. A bright child of unusual talent and promise is called "son of a Unicorn" or "gift of a Unicorn" or even "a child that can ride a Unicorn."

Spirit Of Benignity

The Unicorn, according to the ancient Chinese, is the noblest form of animal creation and is a creature full of gentleness. "He walks and is joyful. Wherever he goes he carries the spirit of spring." Its horn is the symbol of benevolence, for it ends in a fleshy substance, showing that it has no desire to fight or harm any living thing. It is pictured as resembling a stag in its body and a horse in its hoofs, but possessing the tail of an ox and a scaly body. It always has a bare place which begins at the throat and extends over the chest, under the body and to the tip of its tail. Its mane and its tail consist of straight hair and groups of spiral whorls. Its body is supposed to be composed of five elements: earth, air, water, fire and ether, but generally it is said to represent the spirit of fire. Its call is musical, and although its movements are stately and its step is light, so as to leave no footprint, it can be the swiftest of all animals, cunningly avoiding the snares of hunters.

A Celestial Steed

Often represented as the steed of gods and fairies, it is related that a feminine sage from the Western Paradise once honoured the Emperor Wu Ti with a visit. The Emperor bowed before her and requested that she reveal to him the secrets of Tao. Thereupon she replied that an understanding of the doctrine was beyond his human understanding, but nevertheless she presented him with a book entitled "Spirit Flying," dealing with the mystic rites of the Taoist religion. Then she mounted her unicorn steed and in a moment had disappeared. Represented in such a manner in Chinese pictures the Unicorn is always a most colourful and decorative creation.

Wen Kung of the Tang dynasty wrote: "That the Unicorn is a spiritual being is beyond all doubt." Hymned in the "Odes," immortalised in "Springs and Autumns," it has found a place in the writings of all ages. Women and children alike know that it is a portent of good.

MUST BE SANE!

The Depression

Kanakee—Success on the Stock Exchange during the worst years of the depression secured Mr. James A. Rensenhaus' release from an insane asylum. To prove his sanity Mr. Rensenhaus produced records to show that he had made $75,000 speculating in stocks and shares since 1930. The judge agreed that this was good evidence of sanity.

"No man can make that much money these days on the Stock Exchange and be insane," the judge remarked, giving his decision.—Reuter.

PAN-AMERICAN CO. SPANS PACIFICEIGHT YEARS OF PROGRESS*GREAT ACCOMPLISHMENT TO CREDIT OF AVIATION

Since that memorable evening in 1927 when a young man named Lindbergh set his Ryan monoplane, using Mobiloil, down safely on Le Bourget, aviation has progressed steadily toward the establishing of scheduled service linking the old world with the new. Eight intervening years have seen almost unbelievable advances in aircraft operation. Safety, reliability, range, comfort, speed—all have reached a state bordering on perfection. But, until today, no one has made a really serious attempt at a trans-oceanic passenger service.

First Flight

During the past year plans have been studied, routes charted and now the first unit of the new trans-Pacific fleet has made its first Pacific flight from San Francisco to Manila.

An organization for the trans-Pacific run has been set up, and many thousands of miles of training flights over the 1,200-mile course between Miami and Puerto Rico is but a small part of the training the trans-Pacific personnel receive.

The trans-Pacific division is expected to be in full operation early in 1936. The gaps it must span on its way to the Orient, in addition to the 2,410 miles from California to Hawaii, are 1,380 miles to Midway Island, 1,248 to Wake Island, 1,450 to Guam, 1,600 to Manila and 700 thence to connect up with its 3,000 mile system of affiliated air lines in China Proper.

The 190 mile-an-hour Sikorsky, with which the initial flights over this route are to be made, has been equipped with extra fuel tanks which give it a non-stop operating radius of more than 3,000 miles, with a pay load of mail or express, the passenger seats having been removed to make room for gasoline.

"Clipper No. 7," first of Pan-American's three new Glenn L. Martin flying boats, shown in the Magazine Section, is constructed of duralumin and will weigh 23,000 lbs. empty and 51,000 lbs. loaded. Four Pratt and Whitney double-row engines of 800 h.p. each will furnish the power, which is expected to produce a speed of three miles per minute. The "Clipper No. 7" carries 48 passengers and will use Mobiloil and Stanavo Gasoline (Socony Gasoline's flying sister products).

MOTORINGFROM MONTREAL TO MEXICO*Remarkable Journey Of Ford Cars*CROSSING AN UNFINISHED RIVER-BRIDGE

This year for the first time motorists have been able to get through to Mexico City on the new highway under construction by the Mexican Government. The beautiful capital of Mexico previously could not be reached by motor from the United States, because there was a gap of 400 miles without a practicable motor road on the route between Monterey and Mexico City. Much of the route is through mountains and the new road is a considerable engineering feat.

Although the road is by no means completed, a considerable number of cars went through during recent months, among them a caravan of three Ford V-8 cars from Montreal, Canada, carrying delegates to the conventions of Lions International in Mexico City. The journey to Mexico City and return was made in 20 days of driving over approximately 6,500 miles. No mechanical troubles were experienced, although in places, especially in the mountains, the road was rough and somewhat hazardous. At one place in Mexico, Tamazunchale, the only river ferry was sunk by a motorbus from New Jersey which proved too heavy for it. Some 60 motor cars, including the Canadian group, were held up for a time by this, until the engineer in charge of the construction of

LOCALSBig Wedding Dinner

The dinner-party given at the Kwong Chow Restaurant, West Point, last Saturday, by Mr. Yu Ah-tim, compradore of the Naval Dockyard, in celebration of the wedding of his son, Mr. Yu Wai-wah, to Miss Au Un-pik, was a very gay affair, lasting well into the "wee sma' oors" of Sunday morning. Some hundreds of guests in all sat down, including most of the Europeans who were present at the wedding, earlier in the day, at the Gloucester Hotel, a full report of which appeared in the last issue of the Sunday Herald. Among the prominent Chinese guests were Messrs. Ip Lan-chuen, Wong Tak-kwong, Tam Woon-tong, Ho Wing, Ngan Shing-kwan, Cheung Yu-pul, C. F. Lee, Wu Cheuk-ting, Fun Man-sui, Chau Ping-ung, Li Heung-kok, Tong Shuk-pui, Kwok Lu-ting, Yu Cheuk-sang, U Sze-wing, Cheng Ying-sung, Lau Yam-shan, See Kung-pok, Leung Ying-kuen, Chan Yu-tin, Tao Kwai-pang, Lam Tan-chiu, Ko Lo-chi, Nip Kan-ting, Kwok Kwan-mul, Ho Hong-po and many other well known members of the Chinese community.

Hong Kong's Own Pianist

HONG KONG is lucky in being able to claim Miss Fay Litt for its own. She comes of a musical Shanghai family and is herself a pianist. Her brother, Monya Litt, with whom she had often played, is now a B.B.C. star and plays in a famous London band.

"Miss Litt plays everything beautifully," as I heard a local music enthusiast say, but she most enjoys playing Hungarian gipsy and Spanish music. Indeed, she composes music of this type herself. You will enjoy hearing her broadcast locally very soon. Miss Litt pays Hong Kong the compliment of "having everything that Shanghai hasn't!"

Helena May Innovations

THE Annual General Meeting of the Helena May Institute was held last Wednesday morning. Of course there was a large gathering present and Mrs. R. M. Henderson, the President, gave a review of the year's work, making special reference to the new heating system of which they are justly proud.

The Helena May has something new to offer its members which, for many, will add greatly to the pleasure of the next summer. A matchless has been taken at Repulse Bay which will be available for members both morning and afternoon. Actually the matchless was opened this summer, but hitherto not all the members knew of it.

Another item of interest is the religious meetings held at the Helena May every Friday morning. There is always an interesting talk given by the Bishop or another of the local clergyman, and anyone interested is welcome to attend.

Enjoyable Club Dance

THE Y's Men's Club dance last Tuesday night was a tremendous success. There were almost three hundred people present at the dance and one and all seemed to spend a very enjoyable evening. The Roof Garden was attractively decorated and harmonised with the festive spirit of the evening. After a Chinese dinner there was, besides dancing, both bridge and mah jongg.

The Y's Men are to be congratulated on the success of the evening and the amount that was collected to aid the free school which they maintain.

Among those present were Sir William Hornell, Professor Gerard, Dr. Kotevall, Mr. M. K. Lo, Mr. Y. K. Chow, the President of the Club, Dr. Arthur Woo, Mr. Amps, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sin, Dr. F. I. Tseung, J. Choa, P. C. Kwok, Peter Wong, William G. Poy, Y. L. Pao, Dr. Li Shu Pui and Dr. S. W. Phoon.

A modern steel highway-bridge at the Mexican town solved the problem for them. He order I-beams to be laid on their sides, end to end, on the stringers of the uncompleted bridge, at the correct distance apart for the wheel-tread of automobiles, and the cars were driven across in the trough of the I-beams in perfect safety.

GALA NIGHT AT H.K. HOTELHollywood Entertainers To Appear*DANCING NEXT SATURDAY UNTIL 2 A.M.

With the advent of the approaching seasonable festivities participants of week-end dinner dances look forward to attractive entertainment during the intervals between dances, and as in the past the management of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotels, Ltd., have engaged some accomplished artists to feature at their several popular establishments to provide for the enjoyment of patrons.

It will be recalled that these functions last season were productive of sparkling enthusiasm, and all who were in attendance on the numerous occasions will doubtless visualise the particularly attractive turns then produced, when teams of exceptionally accomplished visiting exponents of variety numbers suited the purpose.

Sparkling Innovations

Innovations of a sparkling nature to stimulate the warmth of these festivities are in the offing, and the Hong Kong Hotel will make a commencement by opening its session with a Gala Night in the Grill and Ball Room next Saturday. On this occasion our old favourites Cowan and Bailey will perform with piano, banjo and song. The troupe includes also Ted and Evelyn, rhythm and tap dancers, direct from the Hollywood Studios, and Estelle Davis, Mistress of Ceremonies.

A very enjoyable night is promised, when dancing will be continued until 2 a.m., and as there is sure to be a heavy booking it is suggested that early reservations be effected.

FATHER HOLDS THE BABYClasses Proposed For Vienna*SECONDARY TO MOTHER

Vienna.—Father, in future, should not only provide for baby but also hold it.

Such is the opinion of experts on baby treatment here, who add that he is destined to play a larger part in family life; but needs educating up to it.

For this purpose, Vienna, which eight years ago was the first city in Europe to organise a "School For Mothers," is to carry on the good work by adding to it a "School For Fathers."

The courses to be followed are based on two principles that seem all in favour of Mother:

"Supreme Command"

Father must remember that when Mother is at home she is in "supreme command" of the children. He must not interfere.

He must know how to look after the children, however, when she is out shopping or has gone to the pictures.

But as with every good tale, the ending lies in the end.

KISSES ACROSS A FRONTIERFamily Man Marooned In Canada*Niagara Falls.

When John Blasucci wants to kiss his wife and two daughters he has to lean across an international frontier to do so.

He is separated from his family, who are in the United States, by the immigration laws. A minor irregularity in his papers prevents him for the time being leaving Canada.

Every day Mr. Blasucci and his daughters walk to the middle of the international bridge here and spend some while conversing with the isolated man.—Reuter.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

SIFTING OUT THE SYSTEMS

(By Lieut.-Col. H. M. BEASLEY)

If any evidence is necessary of the rapid growth in popularity of Contract Bridge, the tournament held at Harrogate has provided it in a most convincing manner.

Over a thousand competitors from England, Scotland and Wales—the large majority women—took part in the various events, and their enthusiasm and keenness were only equalled by the skill and knowledge which they displayed.

It has often been urged that the innumerable inflexible bidding systems which have been introduced during the last seven years have deterred a large number of people from taking up the game.

But it is now quite evident that the merits of these various systems have been sifted out, the good parts retained and others discarded, with the result that players have come to the conclusion that adherence to the basic principles and card sense are all that is necessary to achieve good results.

The Problems

However, there are always problems in bridge which present difficulties. Duplicate matches bring this fact to light daily. The results obtained by various players—and fairly good players—are not by any means perfect.

For example, here is a hand which was played in the final round of the Fours Championship at Harrogate, in which 54 teams of four entered.

A slam can be made in Diamonds or Clubs, and only one pair succeeded in bidding this slam.

Here are North and South hands. North was the dealer:—

North	South
S.—J	S.—A 7 4
H.—K J 10 4	H.—3
D.—K 6 3 2	D.—A 9 8 7 4
C.—K Q 10 5	C.—A J 7 4

How would you bid this hand? North's hand does not contain any Ace, is a 3-suiter hand, and it is evident that if a fit can be found in either of the three suits, or the partner can show Spades, a game is probable.

Therefore, an opening bid of One Club is advisable. When South hears an opening bid from his partner of One Club, he should definitely envisage a game and a probable slam. What should be his next move?

He must make some sort of bid to indicate this to his partner. Holding a singleton Heart, a No Trumps bid is inadvisable. He must, therefore, encourage his partner with a bid of at least Two or Three Diamonds.

If you are playing the forcing tactics, Two Diamonds will be sufficient. Personally, I prefer to count up the value of my hand in the simple manner which I have often recommended.

I envisage my partner, who has opened with One Club, with a hand containing a minimum of 13 points, reckoning the honours as follows:

A—4; K—3; Q—2; J—1.

And as a responding hand my honour count is also 13, but I count three points extra for the fourth Club, reckoning Clubs as Trumps, and three points more for the singleton Heart, which gives my hand a total of 19 points. If Clubs are Trumps.

With my 19 points, and 13 points in the original hand, equalling 32, I immediately envisage a slam. I therefore indicate the strength of my hand to my partner with a triple jump in Diamonds, in case the Diamonds should fit his hand. I could just

JAPANESE ART

Wonderful Display
At Komor'sOLD PRINTS, OBIS AND KIMONOS

The well-known collector, Mr. Okomoto, who exhibited here in February, 1934, has been displaying silk goods with Komor's since Wednesday last. The exhibition remains open for three more days. Lovers of fine tapestry, silks, wood-cut prints and cultured pearls will be very greatly surprised at the choice collection.

Obis

Obis are Japanese belts worn by the ladies in general; but for court ceremonies a special kind is required. Wealth and standing are judged by the quality and value of the obi worn with the court kimono. Some of the obis exhibited by Mr. Okomoto are made by hand, woven with gold thread from exquisite designs.

Prints

Japanese prints, old and new, are made in similar fashion to the ancient German wood cuts. The designs are drawn by one of Japan's foremost artists and the block with the completed drawing is handed to another expert craftsman, who with the same tediousness as the modern ivory carver, carves the designs with deep and shallow indentations to hold the various colours for printing. Even to-day, with modern manufacture, authentic copies are still produced in exactly the same manner and with the same material as 100 years ago, but many imitations printed with modern chemical dyes and made with modern printing mats are in circulation at very cheap prices. Authentic copies of old prints have a standard market value and become rare in time and go up in value.

Kimono

Lover of bright colours and fine materials will appreciate the flashing beauties of the Japanese court kimono exhibited by Mr. Okomoto, who has collected these for over 15 years.

Pearls

Owing to the unfortunate death of Mrs. Kodaka, Mr. Kodaka is not able to hold his regular pearl exhibition this year. Messrs. Komor and Komor have arranged with Mr. Okomoto to display a few genuine cultured pearl necklaces so as not to disappoint their regular customers. The quality, price and lustre of the pearls equal those of the annual exhibition, but owing to the value of this type of merchandise the quantity this time is rather limited. During this exhibition Komor's Art Galleries will be open till 7 p.m.

as easily have bid Five Clubs, the bidding actually proceeding as follows:

North

One Club.

Four Diamonds.

South

Three Diamonds.

Six Clubs.

A small slam was made.

The majority of those who used approach forcing tactics bid the hand in the following manner:—

North

One Club.

Three Diamonds. (Showing support in Diamonds; suit verified.)

Three No Trumps. (Indicating no further values.)

South

Two diamonds. (A forcing bid.)

Three Spades. (Indicating control of the Spade suit.)

Five Clubs. (Here the bidding ended and a small slam was missed.)

If you employ the simple method of hand valuation which I have advocated, you will at once come to the conclusion that a slam with this hand is more than probable, and it is one of many instances where the partner who holds the big hand should take control of the situation and bid the small slam himself.

In this particular example, South holds three Aces, and it is extremely unlikely that North, who holds no Ace at all, is ever likely to attempt a slam bid.

Therefore, South must take the initiative, and the moral is this: Don't expect your partner to bid your hand for you!

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 183.

SPECIMENS of and queries concerning snakes have been sent to me on several days recently. There was first of all the instance of a lady having been bitten on the Fanning golf course. She, or a friend, had the sense to realise that treatment of snake-bite depends on the species of snake that does the biting and the snake was brought to the hospital and sent to me. It proved to be a harmless i.e. non-venomous species, Natrix piscator, the common Water-snake or Shui schr, not even full-grown. I have never heard of anyone having been bitten by this species and can only suggest that it must have been disturbed—perhaps the lady stood on its tail. When I mentioned this story to a friend he remarked that every dead snake proved to be a harmless species. This is, however, not always true! If the snake is venomous and it happens to bite you, you will soon realise the fact, for the bite will be painful and the area round the wound will become inflamed.

Bamboo Snake

Then along came a Bamboo Snake, Trimeresurus albobabris, killed in the garden next door. It was just dead, or rather its brain was, but its muscles were still contracting. I pressed it behind the head, causing the jaws to open. The mechanism may be of interest to some. The upper jaw is not fused to the skull as in man but articulates at the back with the quadrate (present in the human ear) and with the articular, the hind bone of the lower jaw. The upper jaw consists of the pterygoid behind the palatine in front, both of which bear teeth. The palatine articulates with the short maxilla, which bears the poison fang or fangs. Another bone, the transverse, articulates with the centre of the pterygoid (which is a wide open V in shape) and with the base of the maxilla and anterior end of the palatine in front. When the lower jaw is depressed the articular presses upwards and forwards on the V-shaped pterygoid and palatine arch, which is therefore thrust forwards, this (together with the assistance of the transverse) pushes the maxilla forwards and thus depresses the fang ready for action. As the top end of the quadrate is not fused with the skull, but articulates with it, the forward thrust of the pterygoid-palatine arch is much accentuated by the contraction of facial muscles fixed to the skull in front and the base of the quadrate behind, thus causing the quadrate to hinge downwards and the arch to be pushed forwards. A complicated hinging mechanism, but very efficient. On one side of the snake examined were two fangs, on the other one, which had been broken. With the aid of a match-stick the jaws were kept separated and the snake was picked in this condition.

Other Colony Snakes

Then a query was received in respect to snakes seen near Starling Inlet; from the descriptions sent they were apparently two Bamboo Snakes and one Red-necked Snake. The latter, Natrix subminiata, is non-venomous and can easily be recognised by its dark green or greenish brown colour with conspicuous red markings on the neck.

Another, from Sheung Shui proved to be Boiga multimaculata, of 1 foot 4½ inches; it had swallowed a lizard, Calotes versicolor, 9½ inches in length, which altered its appearance somewhat. This is a pretty spotted snake, not harmful to man but technically venomous, as one or more of its back teeth are grooved, forming venom ducts. Just as a man would find it difficult to take a bite out of an apple, using only his wisdom teeth, so would this snake find difficulty in injecting venom into your leg. Apparently the use to which these fangs are put is to keep the prey still whilst it is being swallowed. Swallowing a creature more than half your own length cannot at the best of times be easy; but it would be easier if, just as the head was entering the gullet, a dose of venom could be injected; then wriggling tail and kicking legs would not avail the prospective meal to regain its freedom. Whether it is better to kill your food first, as in the case of the Bamboo Snake, or eat it first and kill it after, as in the case of the Spotted Snake, is another problem.

REARMAMENT IN RUMANIA

Dramatic Meeting Of Cabinet

Bucarest.—Rumania is to spend over £4,000,000 on rearmament. It is stated here, as the result of advice given by French, Yugoslavian and Czechoslovakian military experts who were present at the recent Royal manoeuvres.

This decision was taken following two dramatic meetings held on the actual "scene of battle," after which the Prime Minister, M. Tatarescu, rushed back to Bucarest, where he called a special Cabinet meeting to discuss the means of raising the necessary funds.

Increased Taxation

About half the money, according to official sources, will have to be raised by means of a loan and increased taxation.

Should the Government be successful in raising the money, it is believed that the opposition will be unable to force it out of power in accordance with present plans for a peasant march on the capital on November 14.—Reuter.

SMUGGLERS OF SILVER

Japanese Nationals To Be Warned

PROCLAMATION SHORTLY BY AUTHORITIES IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Yesterday. Questioned yesterday about the report current locally, to the effect that the Japanese authorities in Shanghai are contemplating taking severe action against Japanese nationals who have infringed the new Chinese currency regulations, Mr. H. Acino, Second Secretary to the Japanese Embassy, said: "The Consul-General has under consideration a proposal to issue a proclamation warning Japanese nationals against engaging in attempts to smuggle silver out of China."

He indicated that a proclamation would probably be issued very shortly. — Reuter.

Friendly Gesture To China

Shanghai, later: The news that the Japanese authorities were considering the proposal to issue a proclamation warning Japanese nationals against smuggling silver out of China leaked out on to the market in the form of a rumour.

Exchange circles regard it as a friendly gesture towards China. The opinion is expressed that the cessation or a diminution of the outflow of silver might result in a reduction of the supply of foreign currencies offered on the local market, hitherto derived from the sale of silver abroad, thereby removing an important factor in the maintenance of the market rates at the present level. — Reuter.

MESSAGE FROM SOUTH

Referred To Executive Committee

MR. CHOU TO RETURN TO CANTON

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday. President Lin Sen of the National Government last night replied to the telegram of Mr. Hsiao Fu-chen, leading member of the South-west Political Council, and stated that his message demanding that force be used to put down the Tunchow rebellion had been referred to the Executive Yuan and Military Affairs Commission for action.

Lieut.-Generals Teng Lung-kwong and Li Han-yun, divisional commanders of the Kwangtung armies, indicated to the high command here that should there be a war between China and Japan they will volunteer for active service. Their offers will be duly forwarded to the Nanking authorities.

Mr. Chou Lou, leading South-west representative in Nanking, telegraphed to Canton saying that he would not accept any post in the Nanking Government but would return here after the first plenary session of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee. Mr. Chou is Chancellor of the National Sun Yat-sen University and an executive member of the South-west Political Council.

Other delegates to the Fifth National Congress will be back here to-morrow. Nanking's policy towards Japan is by compromise and concessions, hence the South-west leaders are disappointed that all the talk of suppressing Yin Jue-keng's revolt is but talk.

Strict secrecy was maintained regarding the nature of the agenda, but it is understood that Signor Mussolini reported on the findings of the Chemical Corporation, which recently held a number of meetings with the object of producing machinery for increasing Italy's fuel supply, especially that suitable for aeroplane engines.

A communique will probably be issued at the close of the meeting. STRICT SECRECY MAINTAINED. Later: A communique issued at the conclusion of the Cabinet meeting states that the Cabinet approved the recommendation of the head of the Government for the expansion of the Supreme Committee for National Defence. No direct reference is made to the war or to sanctions.

PHILIPPINES APPROACHED. Geneva: The decision to approach the Philippines, as the latest born independent State, with a request for collaboration in the sanctions against Italy was taken to-day by the League Committee of Experts. — Reuter.

"Economic autocracy is only possible when sufficient foreign currency is available to meet fresh deficits. Foreign currency does not all fall from heaven, but can only be obtained by increased enterprise." — Reuter.

After the battle is over the real fight begins—the fight to save the wounded. This first-aid station, one of the few on the Ethiopian side of the lines, has been rushed to the battlefield to alleviate somewhat the pain and suffering of the wounded after a skirmish with the Italian forces on the northern front.

It is believed that the Tunchow episode will be settled by negotiations without resort to arms by Nanking.

Discussion At Shanghai

Shanghai, Yesterday. Acting under instructions of General Chiang Kai-shek, Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission, Generals Chen Chun and Chen Yi to-day called on Mr. Akira Arisuyoshi, Japanese Ambassador to China, and Major-General Rensuke Isogai, Japanese Military Attache. They were closeted at the Japanese Embassy for a discussion lasting almost two hours.

Later Mr. Huang Fu called at the home of General Chang Chun-White the nature of these meetings is not disclosed, it is understood that the Central Authorities will attempt to settle the Tunchow incident by diplomatic negotiations.

FLEET MOVEMENTS REPORTED. Canton: "Sixty big cruisers flying the Chinese flag are cruising somewhere in the Pacific Ocean in connection with the Japanese threat to occupy North China," stated the Kwun Shing Evening News last night.

The Union News Service attempted to verify this statement to-day but failed to secure confirmation. It is believed that the report is purely propaganda. — Union News.

UNTRUTHFUL RUMOURS. Canton: It is learned from official sources that secret agents are going about the various districts in the province spreading disturbing rumours about the Sino-Japanese relations. General Chan Chai-tong has issued instructions to the various district authorities to take precautions against the activities of such agents.

MORE TELEGRAMS. Canton: The Nine Po Society in Canton circulated telegrams yesterday denouncing the so-called "Autonomy Government" in North China. The telegrams urge Marshal Chiang Kai-shek to lead his crack troops north and curb the rebellion. — Central Press.
